Paris, Feb. 26.—France turned again to Andre Tardieu today as the most immediately available savior of the tangled political situation which has brought the five-power naval conference in London to a complete standstill.

Tardieu visited the presidential palace this afternoon and accepted the invitation to head the new cabinet, after having refused to do so in the morning.

Tardieu, with the powerful backing of Raymond Poincaré, France's master statesman, may be able to form a temporarily workable government in place of the abortive one of Camille Chautemps, which was defeated yesterday in the chamber of deputies.

It was a strenuous morning at the Elysee palace. Tardieu was called by President Gaston Doumergue to form a cabinet, but refused. Only the able Poincaré, he insisted, had the power to command a workable majority.

Poincaré, who has been seriously ill, was then called but he also refused because of his health.

Paris, Feb. 26.—Former Premier Andre Tardieu today refused President Gaston Doumergue's invitation to form a new cabinet.

Tardieu suggested that Raymond Poincaré be called to duty as the only candidate capable of obtaining a substantial majority in the chamber of deputies.

Tardieu's refusal to accept the task was announced after a hurried conference with Doumergue shortly before 1 A. M. Leaders of the senate and chamber had informed President Doumergue that in their opinion, only Tardieu, under present circumstances, could command a majority.

Poincaré, former premier and one of the few politicians of France who has long been able to control the chamber, has been recovering from a serious illness, and last week informed Doumergue that he felt in no condition to accept the responsibilities of leadership so soon.

Doumergue immediately sent his automobile to Poincaré's residence, summoning the veteran leader to the Elysee.

Poincaré declared, before going to the palace, that he would decline the offer.

Askov, Minn., Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—William Lindbergh, 42, fireman of Superior, Wis., was killed and 50 passengers were shaken up when a Great Northern passenger train was derailed near here last night.

The accident was believed caused by a steel bar of the locomotive frame loosening and dragging along the track. The train tore up several rods of right-of-way before the locomotive and four coaches toppled over.

All of the passengers escaped from the overturned coaches. Lindbergh was crushed when he leaped from the locomotive and lay stunned beside the track until the coal tender toppled over on him. He died an hour after the wreck.

The engineer, Peter McGowan of Superior, had sensed something was wrong and the train was slowed down to about 15 miles an hour before the accident occurred. The train, which is known as the "Gopher Special," left Duluth for St. Paul at 4 P. M. and the accident occurred at 5:30 P. M.

Poincaré, former premier and one of the few politicians of France who has long been able to control the chamber, has been recovering from a serious illness, and last week informed Doumergue that he felt in no condition to accept the responsibilities of leadership so soon.

FINISHES FUR FARM
PROBE

Minneapolis, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—The Hennepin county grand jury today was reported to have completed its investigation of the Ten Thousand Lakes Fur Farm Corporation with a vote not to return indictments against any of the several persons involved.

Members of the jury were quoted as having said the body failed to indict because of an assumption that such action would be outside its jurisdiction.

Floyd B. Olson, county attorney, indicated the evidence uncovered by the jury may be turned over to the United States district attorney's office for use in a federal investigation. Rush D. Simmons, postal inspector, and other federal investigators are searching for evidence upon which to base charges of using the mails to defraud.

Frank P. O'Malley, secretary of the corporation, was reported to have told the jury that a former state official accepted $2,200 in cash and stock from the Ten Thousand Lakes concern. O'Malley said the object of the gift was to induce the official to use his influence toward allowing the company to continue its sale of unit contract shares.

Testimony of investors in the concern also was taken in an attempt to substantiate charges that the company violated state laws in allegedly defrauding northwest investors of $500,000.

Reports that an official of a second fur farms company had been indicted were denied by members of the jury. The final session of the present jury will be held Friday when the evidence may be given to the federal investigators.

MANY PLACES

St. Paul, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—Heralding its arrival with driving snow storms and Arctic winds, winter today carried another assault on Minnesota and the northwest.

Temperatures throughout Minnesota, Wisconsin and the Dakotas dropped from 20 to 30 degrees to an average of about 18 above zero. Snow falls reaching a depth of 11 inches completely tied up highways and railroad lines in several sections.

Little relief was promised by the United States weather bureau prediction which said "mostly cloudy tonight and Thursday, snow probable in the northwest portion; colder tonight and in southeast portion Thursday."

The brunt of the snow storm was borne by the western half of North Dakota and the Lake Superior region near Duluth, Minn., and Superior, Wis. A storm brewed on the Great Lakes swept over the two shipping ports yesterday and left a blanket of eight inches of snow.

The snowfall continued today, even as a 30-mile wind piled drifts up to a depth of four feet.

A Soo Line passenger train was held up over night by a vicious snow storm near Fairdale, N. D., where a 10-inch snowfall was reported. The train crew and 25 passengers took refuge in farm houses until today.

In other sections of North Dakota highways and railroad tracks were completely blocked. High winds were swirling the drifts higher and it was feared several days would be required to restore communication completely.

Among the lower temperatures (all above zero) reported from throughout the northwest were Duluth, 18; Moorhead, 18; Brainerd, 19; St. Paul, 20; Devils Lake, N. D., 14; Williston, N. D., 4; Bismarck, S. D., 6; Huron, S. D., 12; and Pierre, S. D., 12.

St. Paul, Feb. 26.—Winter's latest onslaught on Minnesota and the northwest drove steadily southward today, carrying the first snow in two weeks to the central section of the state.

A period of balmy weather climaxed by spring thunder storms was ended with the first flurries of snow in St. Paul and Minneapolis this afternoon.

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 26.—With highways blocked and railroads operating far behind schedule, North Dakota today was digging itself out from under the worst snow storm in several years.

The third heaviest snowfall in a half century brought intense suffering to prairie farmers. Scores of families were marooned in their homes, but no deaths or serious cases of exposure were reported.

Communication in the western half of the state was tied up almost completely by more than 10 inches of snow. Miles of highways were blocked and railroads either abandoned service on less important lines or sent trains through several hours behind time.

The crew and 25 passengers of a Soo Line branch between Thief River Falls and Kenmare, N. D., were snow-bound over night near Fairdale, N. D. The passengers either were quartered in nearby farm houses or taken by sleigh to Fairdale.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—The 18th amendment is "an impertinent invasion of the constitution and in no sense an amendment to it," Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, told the house judiciary committee today in a letter.

Butler, an outspoken opponent of prohibition, demanded repeal before the government starts to deal with the liquor problem.

The document from Butler was read as the wets opened the final two days of presentation of their case at the committee's hearing on proposals to modify or repeal the dry law.

It came as Dr. Francis J. Gorty, head of the Chicago psychopathic hospital, testified that alcoholic cases in his hospital were on the increase.

CURRENT PRICES OF COTTON

Washington, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—A resolution calling upon Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to report on the advisability of closing the grain and cotton exchanges was introduced in the senate today by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, opening a general debate of the current prices of cotton and grain.

The resolution was passed by the senate after several members had discussed the sudden break in wheat prices which yesterday shot that grain down to below $1 a bushel for the first time in many months.

In the debate Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, charged a conspiracy exists among private grain elevator operators to discredit the farm board by depressing the price of grain.

Heflin and Nye asserted that futures trading in grain and cotton should be eliminated. Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, announced he will ask for action as soon as the tariff bill is out of the way on his bill to eliminate the futures markets by preventing them the use of the mails.

The manipulations of large traders, Heflin said, were responsible for the recent precipitate decline in cotton and grain prices.

"These gamblers are defeating the purpose of the president and the federal farm board," he said. "Their orgy has cost the farmers of the country thousands of dollars. Congress must do something to stop them."

GRAIN GIANTS
BATTLE IN WHEAT
PIT OF CHICAGOROAR OF PIT CAUGHT UP ON ECHO OF YESTERDAY'S
CLOSE OF MARKETCREST OF BUYING WAVE PARALLELS
WILDEST MOMENTS OF WAR DAYS

Chicago, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—The Chicago wheat pit, maelstrom where millions have been won and lost, where a reeked figure means financial triumph or ruin, where the toll of hundreds of thousands of farmers is translated into terms of new automobiles and radios, or of mortgages, held another battle of the grain giants today.

The roar of the pit was caught up on the echo of yesterday's close, which came on the crest of a buying wave that paralleled the wildest moments of war days in the grain market.

Buyers stampeding in the last minutes yesterday forced the price of wheat back to $1.04, within a fraction of Monday's close. It had plunged to 98 cents during the day.

"Will it go up or down?" That question gleamed from the eyes of drawn-faced traders. It sent floor men shoving, leaping and shouting to get orders recorded. It quickened the fingers of the board boys as they sped to post the figures.

Similar scenes were enacted in the major wheat markets of the continent, because what happens in the Chicago pit, located in the largest grain market in the world, governs the tempo of trading in the other wheat centers.

This battle, where a cent advance is a victory and a fractional drop is a bitter defeat for the farmers and their wives and children out in the Dakotas, on the Kansas plains or on the central prairies, is different than any of the historic ones of the past.

Many individuals and combines have fought to "corner" the wheat market. This struggle sees a new antagonist in the fray, the federal farm board. Through its stabilization corporation, the board was said to have bought wheat freely yesterday. It was reported to have taken between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 bushels on the Chicago market in the last minute buying rush.

Those millions of dollars thrown into a falling market were credited with halting the price plummet and it so signalized the first major activity of the government's effort to hold prices of foodstuffs above a set minimum.

How many bushels of grain changed hands yesterday in the greatest avalanche of selling in months had not been announced but veteran traders estimated the total at between 150,000,000 and 300,000,000. It was estimated that the fall in price of recent months climaxed by the debacle yesterday had reduced the value of world grain by $2,400,000,000 and that the value of American grain was $480,000,000 under the peak of last fall.

SAYS AL SMITH
WILL NEVER BE A CANDIDATE AGAIN

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee, was here briefly today and gave his "personal opinion" Alfred E. Smith "will never again be a candidate for the presidency."

"Should the democratic nomination again be offered Mr. Smith he would decline it, in my opinion," Dr. Shouse said. "He realizes he could not be elected."

The rebel troops occasionally shouted or cheered but one policeman told the United Press correspondent that "there will be no bloodshed because the American minister will arrange everything."

Madame Vasquez, who had been at the American legation, returned to the presidential palace shortly before noon, joining her husband there. Rumors that Vasquez was hiding at the French legation were dispelled when the president was seen at the palace by newspapermen.

The revolutionists did not disturb headquarters of the customs receiver, William Pulliam, the latter said.

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Feb. 26.—Horacio Vasquez, an elderly gentleman of benevolent appearance and kindly manner, told this correspondent in an exclusive interview that he will not resign the presidency of the Dominican Republic, and that he intends to abide by the country's constitution, under which he will remain in office until August.

To the question of whether he will be a candidate for office again, one of the issues in the present insurrection, he declined to reply.

The scene in the president's bedroom, where Vasquez was receiving constant reports from his counselors and advisers on progress at the "front" was one inviting some pity, for the president is far from a well man. "I have not resigned," he said flatly. "And I shall remain in office in accordance with the constitution."

The bulk of the Dominican army, Vasquez is convinced, is loyal. Therefore, he was somewhat surprised, he said, that the military forces had permitted the insurrectionists to take over the fort at Santiago without resistance.

Scorning the suggestion that he had intended leaving Santo Domingo, the president denied that he ever contemplated running away, and said that although he slept at the fortress the night of the outbreak, he returned to the presidential palace in the morning.

Pleased with the friendly offices of the American legation, Vasquez said that the Americans, he realized, had acted only to prevent bloodshed.

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Feb. 26.—Revolutionary forces entered Santo Domingo at dawn today and occupied the city.

They made no effort to take the fort upon their entrance.

Heavy rifle firing in the central plaza at 6 A. M. signalized the attack on the city, but casualties are believed to be few.

The insurrectionist force is estimated at about 2,000. They were armed with rifles, but were not uniformed.

The military phase of the revolution appeared to have been successfully accomplished at 9 A. M. The government troops did not resist the occupation of the capital and the public apparently accepted the change in government as a fact, considering the resignation of Vasquez as inevitable.

The president was understood to be in the capital but reports that he had resigned could not be confirmed. Vice President Jose D. Alfonseca told the United Press he had definitely resigned his office.

Vice President Alfonseca appeared to be the chief foe of the revolutionists and he was given refuge at the French legation as a personal friend of the minister. Alfonseca said he understood that President Vasquez was negotiating with the rebel leaders in an effort to reach an agreement.

The revolutionists, who showed no hostility toward Americans or the United States officials here, said they occupied the city because President Vasquez had failed to fulfill an earlier agreement to resign.

They entered at daybreak, firing rifles into the air for about an hour in the municipal plaza. The public did not venture into the streets until after 7 A. M. but citizens then began gathering opposite the 400-year-old gray Spanish cathedral in which is the monument of Christopher Columbus. The crowd was excited and eager to buy the first editions of newspapers explaining late developments.

The revolutionists had expelled municipal police and government soldiers from the plaza when they first entered the city but later permitted them to return and continue their patrol, side by side with the roughly-dressed invaders.

The rebel troops occasionally shouted or cheered but one policeman told the United Press correspondent that "there will be no bloodshed because the American minister will arrange everything."

Madame Vasquez, who had been at the American legation, returned to the presidential palace shortly before noon, joining her husband there. Rumors that Vasquez was hiding at the French legation were dispelled when the president was seen at the palace by newspapermen.

St. Paul, Feb. 26.—O. P. B. Jacobson, chairman of the state railroad commission, today expressed resentment over the manner in which the Great Northern railroad handled a train derailed near Askov, Minn., last night.

Jacobson, a passenger on the train, said the derailment occurred at 5:30 P. M. yesterday but that 50 passengers were forced to remain in the cold coaches until 1:40 A. The third heaviest snowfall in a half century brought intense suffering to prairie farmers. Scores of families were marooned in their homes, but no deaths or serious cases of exposure were reported.

Communication in the western half of the state was tied up almost completely by more than 10 inches of snow. Miles of highways were blocked and railroads either abandoned service on less important lines or sent trains through several hours behind time.

The crew and 25 passengers of a Soo Line branch between Thief River Falls and Kenmare, N. D., were snow-bound over night near Fairdale, N. D. The passengers either were quartered in nearby farm houses or taken by sleigh to Fairdale.

BUTLER IN ODD OPINION OF THE 18TH AMENDMENT

Washington, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—The 18th amendment is "an impertinent invasion of the constitution and in no sense an amendment to it," Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, told the house judiciary committee today in a letter.

Butler, an outspoken opponent of prohibition, demanded repeal before the government starts to deal with the liquor problem.

The document from Butler was read as the wets opened the final two days of presentation of their case at the committee's hearing on proposals to modify or repeal the dry law.

It came as Dr. Francis J. Gorty, head of the Chicago psychopathic hospital, testified that alcoholic cases in his hospital were on the increase.

The statement was signed by Drs. Thomas A. Clayton and Francis R. Wagner, who have attended Mr. Taft since the beginning of his present illness.

SUGGEST THAT GRAIN, COTTON EXCHANGES CLOSE

RESOLUTION IS ADDRESSED TO SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE HYDE

OPENS GENERAL DEBATE ON CURRENT PRICES OF COTTON AND GRAIN

Washington, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—A resolution calling upon Secretary of Agriculture Hyde to report on the advisability of closing the grain and cotton exchanges was introduced in the senate today by Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, opening a general debate of the current prices of cotton and grain.

The resolution was passed by the senate after several members had discussed the sudden break in wheat prices which yesterday shot that grain down to below $1 a bushel for the first time in many months.

In the debate Senator Nye, republican, North Dakota, charged a conspiracy exists among private grain elevator operators to discredit the farm board by depressing the price of grain.

Heflin and Nye asserted that futures trading in grain and cotton should be eliminated. Senator Caraway, democrat, Arkansas, announced he will ask for action as soon as the tariff bill is out of the way on his bill to eliminate the futures markets by preventing them the use of the mails.

The manipulations of large traders, Heflin said, were responsible for the recent precipitate decline in cotton and grain prices.

"These gamblers are defeating the purpose of the president and the federal farm board," he said. "Their orgy has cost the farmers of the country thousands of dollars. Congress must do something to stop them."

GRAIN GIANTS BATTLE IN WHEAT PIT OF CHICAGO

ROAR OF PIT CAUGHT UP ON ECHO OF YESTERDAY'S CLOSE OF MARKET

CREST OF BUYING WAVE PARALLELS WILDEST MOMENTS OF WAR DAYS

Chicago, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—The Chicago wheat pit, maelstrom where millions have been won and lost, where a rechalked figure means financial triumph or ruin, where the toll of hundreds of thousands of farmers is translated into terms of new automobiles and radios, or of mortgages, held another battle of the grain giants today.

The roar of the pit was caught up on the echo of yesterday's close, which came on the crest of a buying wave that paralleled the wildest moments of war days in the grain market.

Buyers stampeding in the last minutes yesterday forced the price of wheat back to $1.04, within a fraction of Monday's close. It had plunged to 98 cents during the day.

"Will it go up or down?" That question gleamed from the eyes of drawn-faced traders. It sent floor men shoving, leaping and shouting to get orders recorded. It quickened the fingers of the board boys as they sped to post the figures.

Similar scenes were enacted in the major wheat markets of the continent, because what happens in the Chicago pit, located in the largest grain market in the world, governs the tempo of trading in the other wheat centers.

This battle, where a cent advance is a victory and a fractional drop is a bitter defeat for the farmers and their wives and children out in the Dakotas, on the Kansas plains or on the central prairies, is different than any of the historic ones of the past.

Many individuals and combines have fought to "corner" the wheat market. This struggle sees a new antagonist in the fray, the federal farm board. Through its stabilization corporation, the board was said to have bought wheat freely yesterday.

It was reported to have taken between 3,000,000 and 4,000,000 bushels of the Chicago market in the last minute buying rush.

Those millions of dollars thrown into a falling market were credited with halting the price plummet and it so signaled the first major activity of the government's effort to hold prices of foodstuffs above a set minimum.

How many bushels of grain changed hands yesterday in the greatest avalanche of selling in months had not been announced but veteran traders estimated the total at between 150,000,000 and 300,000,000. It was estimated that the fall in price of recent months climaxed by the debacle yesterday had reduced the value of world grain by $2,400,000,000 and that the value of American grain was $480,000,000 under the peak of last fall.

SAYS AL SMITH WILL NEVER BE A CANDIDATE AGAIN

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic national executive committee, was here briefly today and gave as his "personal opinion" Alfred E. Smith "will never again be a candidate for the presidency."

"Should the democratic nomination again be offered Mr. Smith he would decline it, in my opinion," Dr. Shouse said. "He realizes he could not be elected."

The rebel troops occasionally shouted or cheered but one policeman told the United Press correspondent that "there will be no bloodshed because the American minister will arrange everything."

TO PROTEST AGAINST MERGING OF GREAT NORTHERN AND N. P.

Washington, Feb. 26.—(U.P.)—Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, served notice in a speech before the senate today that he will introduce soon a resolution to forbid merging the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, as recently approved by the Interstate Commerce commission.

"I consider such a merger would be dangerous to my section of the country," Dill said.

WILL ABIDE BY COUNTRY'S CONSTITUTION

BULK OF THE DOMINICAN ARMY PROVING TO BE LOYAL

REVOLUTIONARY FORCES ENTER SANTA DOMINGO, OCCUPY CITY

By HARRY W. FRANTZ (United Press Staff Correspondent) (Copyright, 1930, by U. P. Association)

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Feb. 26.—Horacio Vasquez, an elderly gentleman of benevolent appearance and kindly manner, told this correspondent in an exclusive interview that he will not resign the presidency of the Dominican Republic, and that he intends to abide by the country's constitution, under which he will remain in office until August.

To the question of whether he will be a candidate for office again, one of the issues in the present insurrection, he declined to reply.

The scene in the president's bedroom, where Vasquez was receiving constant reports from his counselors and advisers on progress at the "front" was one inviting some pity, for the president is far from a well man.

"I have not resigned," he said flatly. "And I shall remain in office in accordance with the constitution."

The bulk of the Dominican army, Vasquez is convinced, is loyal. Therefore, he was somewhat surprised, he said, that the military forces had permitted the insurrectionists to take over the fort at Santiago without resistance.

Scorning the suggestion that he had intended leaving Santo Domingo, the president denied that he ever contemplated running away, and said that although he slept at the fortress the night of the outbreak, he returned to the presidential palace in the morning.

Pleased with the friendly offices of the American legation, Vasquez said that the Americans, he realized, had acted only to prevent bloodshed.

Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic, Feb. 26.—Revolutionary forces entered Santo Domingo at dawn today and occupied the city.

They made no effort to take the fort upon their entrance.

Heavy rifle firing in the central plaza at 6 A. M. signaled the attack on the city, but casualties are believed to be few.

The insurrectionist force is estimated at about 2,000. They were armed with rifles, but were not uniformed.

The military phase of the revolution appeared to have been successfully accomplished at 9 A. M. The government troops did not resist the occupation of the capital and the public apparently accepted the change in government as a fact, considering the resignation of Vasquez as inevitable.

The president was understood to be in the capital but reports that he had resigned could not be confirmed. Vice President Jose D. Alfonseca told the United Press he had definitely resigned his office.

Vice President Alfonseca appeared to be the chief foe of the revolutionists and he was given refuge at the French legation as a personal friend of the minister. Alfonseca said he understood that President Vasquez was negotiating with the rebel leaders in an effort to reach an agreement.

The revolutionists, who showed no hostility toward Americans or the United States officials here, said they occupied the city because President Vasquez had failed to fulfill an earlier agreement to resign.

They entered at daybreak, firing rifles into the air for about an hour in the municipal plaza. The public did not venture into the streets until after 7 A. M. but citizens then began gathering opposite the 400-year-old gray Spanish cathedral in which is the monument of Christopher Columbus.

The crowd was excited and eager to buy the first editions of newspapers explaining late developments.

The revolutionists had expelled municipal police and government soldiers from the plaza when they first entered the city but later permitted them to return and continue their patrol, side by side with the roughly-dressed invaders.

The rebel troops occasionally shouted or cheered but one policeman told the United Press correspondent that "there will be no bloodshed because the American minister will arrange everything."

Madame Vasquez, who had been at the American legation, returned to the presidential palace shortly before noon, joining her husband there. Rumors that Vasquez was hiding at the French legation were dispelled when the president was seen at the palace by newspapermen.

The revolutionists did not disturb headquarters of the customs receiver, William Pulliam, the latter said.

Washington, Feb. 26.—There are good prospects of an agreement between rebels and the Dominican government, United States Minister Chas. B. Curtis informed the state department today.

THREE IMPORTANT FACTORS ENTER INTO THE COST OF YOUR AUTOMOBILE

1. How much it costs to make the car
2. How much extra you pay the dealer
3. How much it costs for operation and up-keep

THE PURCHASE of an automobile involves a considerable amount of money and it should be carefully considered from all angles before a final decision is made.

The value of the car to you depends on the value built into it at the factory, how much extra you pay the dealer for distribution, selling, financing and accessories and what it will cost to operate and maintain the car after purchase. Each of these factors, as it relates to the Ford car, is frankly explained below.

Economy in production

THE FORD CAR is made economically because of the efficiency of Ford production methods. The money saved through this efficiency is put back into the car in improved quality of material and in greater care and accuracy in manufacturing. The constant effort is to eliminate waste and find ways to make each part better and better without increasing cost—frequently at lowered cost.

Because of Ford economies in large production and because the Ford organization operates on a low-profit margin, the price you pay for the car is much less than it would be under any other conditions. Yet it brings you many unusual features of construction and performance.

At least $75 extra value is represented alone by the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, the Rustless Steel, the four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, and the five steel-spoke wheels. The unusually large number of ball and toller bearings and the extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings are additional features that reflect the high quality built into every part of the car. Throughout, it is a value far above the price you pay.

Low dealer charges

THE SAME PRINCIPLES of efficiency and economy that characterize the manufacture of the Ford car are applied also to distribution. Obviously it would do the public little good to save in production if these savings were sacrificed later in excessive costs of selling, financing and accessories.

The Ford dealer, therefore, operates on the same low-profit margin as the Ford Motor Company, his discount or commission being the lowest of any automobile dealer. He does a good business because he makes a small profit on many sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales.

NOTE THESE LOW PRICES

Roadster . . .	$435
Phaeton . . .	$440
Coupe . . .	$500
Two-window Fordor Sedan . . .	$600
Three-window Fordor Sedan . . .	$625
Cabriolet . . .	$645
Town Sedan . . .	$670

(All prices f. o. b. Detroit)

Low charges for time payments through the Universal Credit Company

The lower cost of selling, combined with the low charges for financing and accessories, means a direct saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser of a Ford, in addition to the savings made possible by economies in manufacturing. The money you pay for a Ford goes into value in the car. It is not wasted in high dealer charges.

Low up-keep costs

IT IS IMPORTANT to remember that the cost of your automobile is not the first cost only, but the total cost after months and years of service. Here again there is a decided saving when you buy a Ford.

The cost of operation and up-keep is lower because of simplicity of design, the high quality of material, and the reduction of friction and wear through unusual accuracy in manufacturing and assembling. The reliability and longer life of the car contribute to its low depreciation per year of use.

The intelligent, painstaking service rendered by Ford dealers is under close factory supervision and is a factor in the low up-keep cost of the Ford. All labor is billed at a flat rate and replacement parts are always available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the United States.

In two, three or five years, depending on how much you drive, the saving in operating and maintaining a new Ford will amount to even more than the saving on the first cost of the car.

THREE IMPORTANT FACTORS ENTER INTO THE COST OF YOUR AUTOMOBILE

1. How much it costs to make the car
2. How much extra you pay the dealer
3. How much it costs for operation and up-keep

THE PURCHASE of an automobile involves a considerable amount of money and it should be carefully considered from all angles before a final decision is made.

The value of the car to you depends on the value built into it at the factory, how much extra you pay the dealer for distribution, selling, financing and accessories and what it will cost to operate and maintain the car after purchase. Each of these factors, as it relates to the Ford car, is frankly explained below.

Economy in production

THE FORD CAR is made economically because of the efficiency of Ford production methods. The money saved through this efficiency is put back into the car in improved quality of material and in greater care and accuracy in manufacturing. The constant effort is to eliminate waste and find ways to make each part better and better without increasing cost—frequently at lowered cost.

Because of Ford economies in large production and because the Ford organization operates on a low-profit margin, the price you pay for the car is much less than it would be under any other conditions. Yet it brings you many unusual features of construction and performance.

At least $75 extra value is represented alone by the Triplex shatter-proof glass windshield, the Rustless Steel, the four Houdaille double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers, and the five steel-spoke wheels. The unusually large number of ball and roller bearings and the extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings are additional features that reflect the high quality built into every part of the car. Throughout, it is a value far above the price you pay.

Low dealer charges

THE SAME PRINCIPLES of efficiency and economy that characterize the manufacture of the Ford car are applied also to distribution. Obviously it would do the public little good to save in production if these savings were sacrificed later in excessive costs of selling, financing and accessories.

The Ford dealer, therefore, operates on the same low-profit margin as the Ford Motor Company, his discount or commission being the lowest of any automobile dealer. He does a good business because he makes a small profit on many sales instead of a large profit on fewer sales.

NOTE THESE LOW PRICES

Roadster	$435
Phaeton	$440
Coupe	$500
Two-window Fordor Sedan	$600
Three-window Fordor Sedan	$625
Cabriolet	$645
Town Sedan	$670

(All prices f. o. b. Detroit)

Low charges for time payments through the Universal Credit Company

The lower cost of selling, combined with the low charges for financing and accessories, means a direct saving of at least $50 to $75 to every purchaser of a Ford, in addition to the savings made possible by economies in manufacturing. The money you pay for a Ford goes into value in the car. It is not wasted in high dealer charges.

Low up-keep costs

IT IS IMPORTANT to remember that the cost of your automobile is not the first cost only, but the total cost after months and years of service. Here again there is a decided saving when you buy a Ford.

The cost of operation and up-keep is lower because of simplicity of design, the high quality of material, and the reduction of friction and wear through unusual accuracy in manufacturing and assembling. The reliability and longer life of the car contribute to its low depreciation per year of use.

The intelligent, painstaking service rendered by Ford dealers is under close factory supervision and is a factor in the low up-keep cost of the Ford. All labor is billed at a flat rate and replacement parts are always available at low prices through Ford dealers in every section of the United States.

In two, three or five years, depending on how much you drive, the saving in operating and maintaining a new Ford will amount to even more than the saving on the first cost of the car.

The Old Days and Modern Times

THE old days had their snowstorms just as we have today, but there is now a decided difference in handling the snowfall. In old times the snow came as an act of God and nothing was ever done to remove it from a highway and quite often a street in town. The inhabitants commented about the depth of the snow and figured when spring would come with its warm winds to thaw out things.

True, some shoveling had to be done from the farm house to the barn and the chicken coop. And in town a path was made from the house to the woodshed, but oftentimes shoveling walks was sadly neglected. Occasionally some public spirited man or corporation or even the town itself hired a man with a team of horses and an old fashioned snowplow to plow sidewalks and some streets.

Heavy snows just blocked business with town and country. It seemed to be as much of a freeze up of those relations as occur at Nome, Alaska, when the last boat goes out and a man cannot return to the States until next summer.

There came upon the scene in Minnesota C. M. Babcock and his assistants of the State Highway Department. They put on snowplows, heavy trucks and other equipment and started a snow removal program, to keep the big trunk highways open and inaugurate all-the-year-around motoring. The first season, the highway department coped with an unusually heavy snowfall. It made a beginning, nevertheless, and it has been continued with greater success crowning its efforts.

Observations were taken of depths to which roads froze. Clearing too much snow from the surface exposed a gravel road to the low temperatures and too much freezing was followed by a slow breakup in the spring with a lot of frost boils added for good measure. So this year we notice plow blades do not skim too closely. Some snow is left for the farmer's sleighing and as a protection to the road surface.

Nowadays towns, cities, villages, counties and townships have taken up the movement and snow removal is a matter of regular procedure and a great stimulant to business of all kinds. The farmer and the country cousin do not hibernate. Roads are kept open and relations continued. Mercantile, professional, dairying, marketing and other business continues with but slight interruption. People are as much concerned in keeping roads open as are the big railway systems in keeping their tracks clear.

But every now and then the city engineers must call attention to shoveling walks in Brainerd. The citizen should not neglect to follow the excellent example set all around him and keep open and well shoveled the walk at his home.

Rudy Vallee Writes a Book

RUDY VALLEE, popular radio artist, has written a book giving a history of his life and experiences entitled "Vagabond Dreams Come True," and published by E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc. Besides writing of his music and the numerous acquaintances he has made along his road to fame, Vallee tells the details of his own life, a simple unassuming story which may surprise many of his large audience.

His real name, we find, is Hubert Prior Vallee. In 1917 he enlisted in the regular U. S. Navy.

Ten years ago he was "jerking sodas" in his father's drug store and sweeping out the local movie theatre for $7 a week. This was in Westbrook, Maine.

Rudy Wiedoeft, the saxophonist, was his idol, and so his friends nicknamed him "Rudy." He was keenly interested in the saxophone and, since there were strenuous objections to his practicing at home, even the neighbors not liking his tones, he hired a town hall for that purpose.

He spent the winter of 1921-1922 at the University of Maine, then transferred to Yale and worked his way through college by orchestra engagements. After two years at Yale he went to London and played in an orchestra at the Savoy hotel. Returning to Yale, he was leader of the band. He graduated in June, 1927.

After that he tramped the streets of New York looking for a job. In January, 1928, he had a chance to sing and play at Don Dickerman's and met with approval. He organized his Connecticut Yankees and was on his way to fame. Last summer he made a talking picture and this winter he wrote his book.

It simply shows what an earnest young man can do and that saxophone playing can be made a stepping stone to higher things, regardless of what one's family or the neighbors may have thought of the first efforts at playing.

Declamation Contests

DECLAMATION contests do not seem to draw as large attendance as basketball games, although just as much energy is given in developing contestants. True, the declamation contestants do not diet, but otherwise it is just as hard a task for all concerned. Of course, there is an angle to basketball playing that few people seem to realize. The contestants must keep up in their studies as well as in basketball play.

The great difference between the two attractions is that one seems to be a sport and the other a task. The attendance at the declamation contest last night was very small to correspond to the earnest effort and attention devoted by contestants in preparing for the contest. The basketball game draws its 1,000 or 1,200 persons attendance.

We should give our attention to the many sides of our high school. There should be friends in attendance at the contest to be held at Crosby-Ironton when the winners of last night's contests will appear.

A nice concession made to the audience last night was permitting them to applaud. Hitherto that was denied and the whole contest was very quiet, with no expression of feeling permitted the audience.

To Aid Butter Consumption

CONGRESSMAN HAROLD KNUTSON of the sixth district is tireless in furthering the cause of more butter consumption. He has addressed a letter to the Quartermaster General of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, asking for information as to the consumption of butter and butter substitutes of these departments during the last fiscal year.

"If the reports from the several bureaus warrant it," writes the Congressman, "I will introduce a measure to prohibit the use of butter substitutes in the military branches of our government."

Lillian Roth and Joe Wagstaff, guest artists on the Paul Whitehead-Old Gold Hour.

STEPPING out of her latest role in the new Paramount talkie, "Honey," Miss Lillian Roth, young and vivacious star of many a Broadway operetta, will grace the Paul Whitehead-Old Gold Hour, Tuesday evening, March 4, on the Columbia coast-to-coast network.

With her at the microphone will be another screen favorite in the person of Joe Wagstaff, aristocratic star of the latest Fox films, "Song of Kentucky" and "Let's Go Places."

Accompanying this duet will be Sam Coslow, Tin Pan Alley's prolific song writer, composer of

"Bebe," "Wanita," "Not Yet Suzette" and other hits.

Miss Roth, actress practically from her cradle days, enjoys the reputation of having been featured by the Shuberts, Flo Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll, Texas Guinan and now Jesse Lasky. She is still in her teens, yet she boasts successes from the early age of 6. Having won honors through the length of Broadway, she now finds herself the star of Paramount's latest picture, "Honey."

The broadcast, in which Miss Roth, Wagstaff and Coslow will be featured, goes on the air at 2, eastern standard time.

Promoting "Air Mindedness"

Airplanes operated by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana to promote public "air mindedness" as well as to carry executives on important missions covered 29,634 miles and carried 2,996 passengers in 1929 without accident.

Demonstration flights were made at twenty-five mid west cities. The passenger ship also participated in one national and two state air tours. A small biplane was used on company business alone.

Towns marked for air traffic by painting of names on company bulk plant roofs reached a total of 3,200. The Guggenheim Fund awards received by the company for this work are being passed on to towns affected.

Several cities were aided by company specialists to select and develop air port sites.

Use of air mail was encouraged by carrying of the slogan "For Quick Service Use Air Mail" in company advertisements appearing 23,469 times in newspapers and magazines with a total circulation of 211,819,000.

Effect of Snake Venom Probed by Scientists

It has been stated on apparently good authority that snake venom will not affect cold-blooded animals, such as snakes, frogs, toads, lizards and fish. Systematic observation shows that this is not the case. Toads, which are very tenacious of life, have been known to survive three days after having been bitten by puff-adders or by cobras, but in the end they succumb. Frogs often die almost instantly after having been bitten. Again, it has been said that the venoms of two deadly snakes of the same species do not affect each other. Though this holds good in some cases, however, it is not true of all. Puff-adders appear to be immune from one another's poison. On the other hand, puff-adders that have been bitten by cobras, manabias, boom-slans, and other venomous South African snakes occasionally die, but not always. In one case a puff-adder which was injected with enough cobra poison to kill six men survived.

Compass in Columbus' Time

The compass did not fall Columbus on his first journey. The actions of the compass were not clearly understood at that time. In all seas known at that time the needle pointed not quite north, but a little west of north, and it was known that by going west the compass needle would point more nearly to the north. No one had heard of a place where it pointed exactly north or even somewhat east of north.

Sinister "Triangle"

The term "eternal triangle" is used in reference to an emotional situation of sex consequence in which either two women and one man or two men and one woman are involved.

Old Treasure Chamber in Westminster Abbey

Few who explore Westminster abbey are aware that there are many of its most ancient and interesting parts of which they have never had a glimpse. For instance, in the eastern cloisters there is a door so guarded against unauthorized intrusion that it can only be opened by seven keys, which are in the jealous custody of as many government officials. Five of the keyholes of this wonderful door, which, by the way, is covered with human skins, are concealed from view by a stout iron bar which traverses it. This door gives access to a vaulted chamber, known as the "Chapel of the Pyx," the walls of which were standing as they stand today before even the Norman conqueror landed in Sussex. This chamber was once the treasury of England, to which were brought "the most cherished possessions of the state."

Old English Adage

The old adage, "Hell is paved with good intentions" is one of the commonest in the English language. It that phraseology it is quoted by Boswell as having been used by Doctor Johnson in 1773. George Herbert puts it: "Hell is full of good wishes and meanings." James Kelly, in Scottish Proverbs, says, "Hopes go to hell." The Portuguese say, "Hell is paved with good intentions and roofed with lost opportunities."

Small Gold Coins

One dollar coins have not been minted for general circulation since 1880. Since that date some have been issued as memorial coins, the last being the Grant memorial coins, in 1922. The smallest current gold coin is the $2.50 gold piece.

The Old Days and Modern Times

THE old days had their snowstorms just as we have today, but there is now a decided difference in handling the snowfall. In old times the snow came as an act of God and nothing was ever done to remove it from a highway and quite often a street in town. The inhabitants commented about the depth of the snow and figured when spring would come with its warm winds to thaw out things.

True, some shoveling had to be done from the farm house to the barn and the chicken coop. And in town a path was made from the house to the woodshed, but oftentimes shoveling walks was sadly neglected. Occasionally some public spirited man or corporation or even the town itself hired a man with a team of horses and an old fashioned snowplow to plow sidewalks and some streets.

Heavy snows just blocked business with town and country. It seemed to be as much of a freeze up of those relations as occur at Nome, Alaska, when the last boat goes out and a man cannot return to the States until next summer.

There came upon the scene in Minnesota C. M. Babcock and his assistants of the State Highway Department. They put on snowplows, heavy trucks and other equipment and started a snow removal program, to keep the big trunk highways open and inaugurate all-the-year-around motoring. The first season, the highway department coped with an unusually heavy snowfall. It made a beginning, nevertheless, and it has been continued with greater success crowning its efforts.

Observations were taken of depths to which roads froze. Clearing too much snow from the surface exposed a gravel road to the low temperatures and too much freezing was followed by a slow breakup in the spring with a lot of frost boils added for good measure. So this year we notice plow blades do not skim too closely. Some snow is left for the farmer's sleighing and as a protection to the road surface.

Nowadays towns, cities, villages, counties and townships have taken up the movement and snow removal is a matter of regular procedure and a great stimulant to business of all kinds. The farmer and the country cousin do not hibernate. Roads are kept open and relations continued. Mercantile, professional, dairying, marketing and other business continues with but slight interruption. People are as much concerned in keeping roads open as are the big railway systems in keeping their tracks clear.

But every now and then the city engineers must call attention to shoveling walks in Brainerd. The citizen should not neglect to follow the excellent example set all around him and keep open and well shoveled the walk at his home.

Rudy Vallee Writes a Book

RUDY VALLEE, popular radio artist, has written a book giving a history of his life and experiences entitled "Vagabond Dreams Come True," and published by E. P. Dutton & Co., Inc.

Besides writing of his music and the numerous acquaintances he has made along his road to fame, Vallee tells the details of his own life, a simple unassuming story which may surprise many of his large audience.

His real name, we find, is Hubert Prior Vallee. In 1917 he enlisted in the regular U. S. Navy.

Ten years ago he was "jerking sodas" in his father's drug store and sweeping out the local movie theatre for $7 a week. This was in Westbrook, Maine.

Rudy Wiedoeft, the saxophonist, was his idol, and so his friends nicknamed him "Rudy." He was keenly interested in his practicing at home, even there were strenuous objections to his practicing at home, since the neighbors not liking his tones, he hired a town hall for that purpose.

He spent the winter of 1921-1922 at the University of Maine, then transferred to Yale and worked his way through college by orchestra engagements. After two years at Yale he went to London and played in an orchestra at the Savoy hotel. Returning to Yale, he was leader of the band. He graduated in June, 1927.

After that he tramped the streets of New York looking for a job. In January, 1928, he had a chance to sing and play at Don Dickerman's and met with approval. He organized his Connecticut Yankees and was on his way to fame. Last summer he made a talking picture and this winter he wrote his book.

It simply shows what an earnest young man can do and that saxophone playing can be made a stepping stone to higher things, regardless of what one's family or the neighbors may have thought of the first efforts at playing.

Declamation Contests

DECLAMATION contests do not seem to draw as large attendance as basketball games, although just as much energy is given in developing contestants. True, the declamation contestants do not diet, but otherwise it is just as hard a task for all concerned. Of course, there is an angle to basketball playing that few people seem to realize. The contestants must keep up in their studies as well as in basketball play.

The great difference between the two attractions is that one seems to be a sport and the other a task. The attendance at the declamation contest last night was very small to correspond to the earnest effort and attention devoted by contestants in preparing for the contest. The basketball game draws its 1,000 or 1,200 persons attendance.

We should give our attention to the many sides of our high school. There should be friends in attendance at the contest to be held at Crosby-Ironton when the winners of last night's contests will appear.

A nice concession made to the audience last night was permitting them to applaud. Hitherto that was denied and the whole contest was very quiet, with no expression of feeling permitted the audience.

To Aid Butter Consumption

CONGRESSMAN HAROLD KNUTSON of the sixth district is tireless in furthering the cause of more butter consumption. He has addressed a letter to the Quartermaster General of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, asking for information as to the consumption of butter and butter substitutes of these departments during the last fiscal year.

"If the reports from the several bureaus warrant it," writes the Congressman, "I will introduce a measure to prohibit the use of butter substitutes in the military branches of our government."

Lillian Roth and Joe Wagstaff, great artists on the Paul White-Mann-Old Gold Hour.

STEPPING out of her latest role in the new Paramount talkie, "Honey," Miss Lillian Roth, young and vivacious star of many a Broadway operetta, will grace the Paul White-Mann-Old Gold Hour, Tuesday evening, March 4, on the Columbia coast-to-coast network.

With her at the microphone will be another screen favorite in the person of Joe Wagstaff, aristocratic star of the latest Fox films, "Song of Kentucky" and "Let's Go Places."

Accompanying this duet will be Sam Coslow, Tin Pan Alley's prolific song writer, composer of

"Bebe," "Wanita," "Not Yet Suzette" and other hits.

Miss Roth, actress practically from her cradle days, enjoys the reputation of having been featured by the Shuberts, Flo Ziegfeld, Earl Carroll, Texas Guinan and now Jesse Lasky. She is still in her teens, yet she boasts successes from the early age of 6. Having won honors through the length of Broadway, she now finds herself the star of Paramount's latest picture, "Honey."

The broadcast, in which Miss Roth, Wagstaff and Coslow will be featured, goes on the air at 9, eastern standard time.

Promoting "Air Mindedness"

Airplanes operated by the Standard Oil Company of Indiana to promote public "air mindedness" as well as to carry executives on important missions covered 29,634 miles and carried 2,996 passengers in 1929 without accident.

Demonstration flights were made at twenty-five mid-west cities. The passenger ship also participated in one national and two state air tours. A small biplane was used on company business alone.

Towns marked for air traffic by painting of names on company bulk plant roofs reached a total of 3,200. The Guggenheim Fund awards received by the company for this work are being passed on to towns affected.

Several cities were aided by company specialists to select and develop air port sites.

Use of air mail was encouraged by carrying of the slogan "For Quick Service Use Air Mail" in company advertisements appearing 23,409 times in newspapers and magazines with a total circulation of 211,819,000.

Effect of Snake Venom

Probed by Scientists

It has been stated on apparently good authority that snake venom will not affect cold-blooded animals, such as snakes, frogs, toads, lizards and fish. Systematic observation shows that this is not the case. Frogs, which are very tenacious of life, have been known to survive three days after having been bitten by puff-adders or by cobras, but in the end they succumb. Frogs often die almost instantly after having been bitten. Again, it has been said that the venoms of two deadly snakes of the same species do not affect each other. Though this holds good in some cases, however, it is not true of all. Puff-adders appear to be immune from one another's poison. On the other hand, puff-adders that have been bitten by cobras, mambas, boom-slans, and other venomous South African snakes occasionally die, but not always. In one case a puff-adder which was infected with enough cobra poison to kill six men survived.

Compass in Columbus' Time

The compass did not fail Columbus on his first journey. The actions of the compass were not clearly understood at that time. In all seas known at that time the needle pointed not quite north, but a little west of north, and it was known that by going west the compass needle would point more nearly to the north. No one had heard of a place where it pointed exactly north or even somewhat east of north.

The term "eternal triangle" is used in reference to an emotional situation of sex consequence in which either two women and one man or two men and one woman are involved.

Old Treasure Chamber

in Westminster Abbey

Few who explore Westminster abbey are aware that there are many of its most ancient and interesting parts of which they have never had a glimpse. For instance, in the eastern cloisters there is a door so guarded against unauthorized intrusion that it can only be opened by seven keys, which are in the jealous custody of as many government officials. Five of the key-holes of this wonderful door, which, by the way, is covered with human skins, are concealed from view by a stout iron bar which traverses it. This door gives access to a vaulted chamber, known as the "Chapel of the Pyx," the walls of which were standing as they stand today before even the Norman conqueror landed in Sussex. This chamber was once the treasury of England, to which were brought "the most cherished possessions of the state."

Old English Adage

The old adage, "Hell is paved with good intentions" is one of the commonest in the English language. It that phraseology it is quoted by Boswell as having been used by Doctor Johnson in 1775. George Herbert puts it: "Hell is full of good wishes and meanings." James Kelly, in Scottish Proverbs, says, "Hoppers go to hell." The Portuguese say, "Hell is paved with good intentions and roofed with lost opportunities."

Small Gold Coins

One dollar coins have not been minted for general circulation since 1880. Since that date some have been issued as memorial coins, the last being the Grant memorial coins, in 1922. The smallest current gold coin is the $2.50 gold piece.

ARGUE OVER RULES IN SCOTT-SHARKEY FIGHT TOMORROW

RUMORS AND UNEASINESS OVER COMING BATTLE

TRAINING EXERCISES, EXCEPT LINGERING UP, ENTIRELY SUSPENDED

ONE YARN IS JOHNSON THREATENS TO PULL OUT SCOTT IF HE IS BALKED ON RULES

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26.—Today was the day of rumors and uneasiness—the day before a major prize fight.

With training activities, except for limbering up exercises by the various fighters, entirely suspended, there was nothing left for the fight followers to do but spread stories and listen to denials.

One yarn went around that Jimmy Johnson really meant it when he threatened to take Phil Scott out of the fight if he didn't have his way about the rules.

He wants the right to throw in the towel and he doesn't want the referee to have the right to stop the fight without consent of the seconds.

But that rumor was quickly written off by everyone concerned, excepting Johnson who contented himself with hedging a little.

Another story was that less than $100,000 worth of tickets had been sold. But the promoters, while not giving out the exact figures, laughed that one off.

And there were many others, still wilder ones, concerning the various fighters.

The consensus was that the fight tomorrow night ought to be a great show from the standpoint of a man who goes to a fight merely to see fighting and doesn't worry about whether something really worth while is involved.

The main event between Sharkey and Scott is expected to be simply a necessary evil.

Scott isn't conceded a chance by anyone outside of his own camp.

But the other bouts should be bang-up affairs.

Victorio Campolo and Johnny Risko are expected to furnish the real scrap of the evening. Campolo, the giant Argentine, who will go into the ring weighing something like 227, is said to be in the best shape of his career.

He has learned considerable about boxing, although there is a suspicion he might learn more from Risko.

A good many experts think that the bout may wind up with one of the two men in a position where he can nibble around at least, at the heavy-weight crown in the role of a future challenger.

Tommy Loughran is the favorite to beat Pierre Charles of Belgium, but by no great margin. The experts pronounce Charles a tough lad, although not many of them feel he can outwit the smart and shifty Loughran—or out-hit him either.

Jim Maloney of Boston is a favorite to win over Moise Bouguillon of France, although anyone who wants to can get up an argument on the point.

The gates will open at 5 P. M. and the first bout is expected about 6:15 P. M. The main event will go on about 9 P. M.

AT LAST

A man decided he and his son would take a drive in their new car. As they entered the car, the father said to the boy: "Now, if you see a motor cycle cop coming behind us, you tell Papa."

They settled down to driving and the car crept up to 30 miles, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55 and finally to 60 miles an hour. Suddenly the little boy cried: "Papa, the man you were expecting is here."—Pacific Power and Light Bulletin.

SAM NESHEIM WITH 576 COUNT IS HIGH MAN; STUDY CLUB CONTINUES ON TOP

Last evening the Sinclair Oils upset the dope when they took down the Study Club for two games. The first game the Oil team won by 24 pins, the Study Club coming back strong in the second game but were overwhelmed in the last game by over 100 pins. Sam Nesheim was star bowler for the evening with 576, his scores being 181, 206 and 189. His steady bowling was the mainstay of the Sinclair Oils. Irwin's 184 helped in the first win while Zierke did his share with 184 in the last game. Hawkins rolled high for Study Club with 537. Jack Alton's 212 in the second game gave him over 500. The Princess Candies will have to take all three games tonight to knock the Study Club from the top of the league.

Alderman-Maghan defeated Peterson Clothing Co. two games. The hardware team rolled a nice 951 count their last game. Hulet rolled 541 which was high total in the match. Guin with 529 was high for Petersons.

Quake Every Half Minute

Every half minute an earthquake occurs somewhere on earth. Great ones powerful enough to destroy towns happen about four times a year. Two especially sensitive zones exist: 1—along the almost continuous stretch of the Alps, Caucasus and Himalaya mountains; 2—along the whole mountainous circle of the Pacific. Often shaken Italy is in the first zone, California and Japan in the second. Eastern North America along the Appalachian chain goes through a noticeable, but usually harmless quake at least once a year, and a damaging one at about five-year intervals. Time, the Newsmagazine.

He Knew the Law

The late Haley Fiske of insurance fame told this story at an insurance men's banquet in New York.

"An American company," he said, "opened a branch in eastern Europe and was soon doing well."

"A rich peasant visited the main office one day, insured his farm, and then said to the manager:

"Now, then, sir, I must have everything plain and clear before I go. Exactly what would I get if my house and barn were to burn down tonight?"

"Not more than ten years and not less than three," said the manager.

Twenty-Three Adjectives

A California man, suing his wife for divorce after less than two years of marriage, says that she is "sullen, mean, irritable, morbid, disagreeable, nasty, gruesome, cool, bitter, jealous, heckling, picaresque, loathsome, insulting, brazen, miserly, gluttonous, temperamental, selfish, contemptuous, inattentive, uncivil and inconsiderate."

It is obvious that one who chose from Roget with such care did not mean to imply that she was uncongenial.

TRACK AND FIELD MEET IS TO BE HELD AT MINNEAPOLIS, MARCH 7 AND 8

HAWKEYE DECISION TO RE-ENTER BIG TEN COMPETITION COMES AS SURPRISE

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 26.—(UP)—The argument between the Big Ten and the University of Iowa officials was closed when it was announced here that the Hawkeyes would be represented in both the Illinois relays and the western conference indoor track and field meet to be held at Minneapolis, March 7-8.

The Hawkeyes' decision to re-enter Big Ten competition so early came as a surprise here since many had expected the refusal to re-instate Iowa athletes who reportedly caused much of the trouble with the conference.

It was said that the Big Ten price of re-admission for Iowa hinged around ruling the ten athletes ineligible, and there are many here who believe the athletes should be re-instated.

World's Oldest Library

Discovered in Syria

What is supposed to be the most ancient library in the world, consisting of documents written in the first alphabetic signs known to savants, was discovered in Syria by a French archaeological expedition. Eighteen large and small tablets, engraved with letters that are neither hieroglyphics nor Assyrian cuneiform characters, but evidently parts of the first alphabet made of 26 and 27 signs, were found by a young Alsatian archeologist on the Syrian coast of the Mediterranean, at a place called Ras-Shamra, near Irtakieh (Ladikiya). The expedition had discovered there a necropolis, the 4,000-year-old ruins of a Phoenician palace and town, and numerous ancient vases, jars and statues of great archeological and historical value. The opinion was put forward by the Academie that these ruins represented traces of an Aegian colony that existed on the Phoenician coast 2,000 years before the present era, and whose civilization was of the Mycenaean period. Salomon Reinach, the famous French historian, who was present when the report was presented, declared that the discovery was a most extraordinary one, and that it would be of the greatest importance for the study of ancient history.

Ruins of Ancient City

Long Hidden in Jungle

After being hidden for centuries in a tangled-up mass of jungle, the ancient city of Gedi, has come to light only 50 miles from modern Mombasa. Professor Fleure, of the University college of Wales, who has been visiting Kenya colony with the members of the British association, believes that Gedi, known in Kenya as the "buried city," is of Persian origin and at least six hundred years old. The ruins disclose a fine Arabic writing, especially in the mosques and tombs. Professor Fleure thinks that Gedi would well repay investigations by archeological and ethnological experts. He does not believe these would be difficult in view of the profusion of evidence provided by the ruins. The town was known to tribes on the coast for many years, but it was shunned by them because they regarded it as being haunted by the spirits of the dead, who wreak special vengeance on intruders. The lighting of a fire in the precincts of the ruins was considered particularly dangerous by the negroes, even if the fire was only a cigarette.

Christmas Fireworks

Both the Chinese and Hindus employed fireworks in their religious festivals long before Europeans knew of gunpowder. Other people copied them. Ancient races used firecrackers, roman candles, and fireworks in connection with the winter solstice celebration. Such pagan ideas have since been incorporated into modern religious and other observances. In Italy and other countries this pagan feature continues in some Christian religious festivals to this day. Christmas eve in some of the Southern states resembles the Fourth of July. There are elaborate fireworks displays, and the children get firecrackers in their Christmas stockings.

Little Tide in Great Lakes

The coast and geodetic survey says that there are no tide tables available, as the periodic tides in the Great lakes are so small that they are generally masked by changes in level brought about by winds, changes in atmospheric pressure and river discharge, and, consequently, are of no practical importance.

Phil SCOTT
--WILL HE MAKE THE FANS FORGET HIS "FOUL" SQUAWKS BY MAKING A GREAT FIGHT AGAINST SHARKEY..?

Oh, well, "My Phil" (as "Jimmy" Johnston, his American manager, calls him) would seem to have a better chance against the temperamental typhoon known as Sharkey than Carph had against The Mauler in the latter's prime. Scott is bigger than the gallant Frenchman and Sharkey seldom has shown such a destructive attack as was once Dempsey's. Phil has a chance of outboxing Jack if the latter's mood happens to be uninspired and, if he can ride Sharkey's early rushes, he might tire less easily than the nerve-wrought, plunging U. S. champ.

Scott is thoroughly experienced and a genuinely skilled boxer. He probably will try to keep away from the bull-like Sharkey during the early rounds (will there be more than one? some prophets ask) and tire out Jack by the or-

ARGUE OVER RULES IN SCOTT-SHARKEY FIGHT TOMORROW

RUMORS AND UNEASINESS OVER COMING BATTLE

TRAINING EXERCISES, EXCEPT LINGERING UP, ENTIRELY SUSPENDED

ONE YARN IS JOHNSON THREATENS TO PULL OUT SCOTT IF HE IS BALKED ON RULES

By MORRIS DE HAVEN TRACY (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Miami, Fla., Feb. 26.—Today was the day of rumors and uneasiness—the day before a major prize fight.

With training activities, except for limbering up exercises by the various fighters, entirely suspended, there was nothing left for the fight followers to do but spread stories and listen to denials.

One yarn went around that Jimmy Johnson really meant it when he threatened to take Phil Scott out of the fight if he didn't have his way about the rules.

He wanted the right to throw in the towel and he doesn't want the referee to have the right to stop the fight without consent of the seconds.

But that rumor was quickly written off by everyone concerned, excepting Johnson who contented himself with hedging a little.

Another story was that less than $100,000 worth of tickets had been sold. But the promoters, while not giving out the exact figures, laughed that one off.

And there were many others, still wilder ones, concerning the various fighters.

The consensus was that the fight tomorrow night ought to be a great show from the standpoint of a man who goes to a fight merely to see fighting and doesn't worry about whether something really worth while is involved.

The main event between Sharkey and Scott is expected to be simply a necessary evil.

Scott isn't conceded a chance by anyone outside of his own camp.

But the other bouts should be bang-up affairs.

Victorio Campolo and Johnny Risko are expected to furnish the real scrap of the evening. Campolo, the giant Argentine, who will go into the ring weighing something like 227, is said to be in the best shape of his career.

He has learned considerable about boxing, although there is a suspicion he might learn more from Risko.

A good many experts think that the bout may wind up with one of the two men in a position where he can nibble around at least, at the heavy-weight crown in the role of a future challenger.

Tommy Loughran is the favorite to beat Pierre Charles of Belgium, but by no great margin. The experts pronounce Charles a tough lad, although not many of them feel he can outwit the smart and shifty Loughran or out-hit him either.

Jim Maloney of Boston is a favorite to win over Moise Bouguillon of France, although anyone who wants to can get up an argument on the point.

The gates will open at 5 P. M. and the first bout is expected about 6:15 P. M. The main event will go on about 9 P. M.

AT LAST

A man decided he and his son would take a drive in their new car. As they entered the car, the father said to the boy: "Now, if you see a motor cycle cop coming behind us, you tell Papa."

They settled down to driving and the car crept up to 30 miles, 35, 40, 45, 50, 55 and finally to 60 miles an hour. Suddenly the little boy cried: "Papa, the man you were expecting is here."—Pacific Power and Light Bulletin.

The Princess Candies will have to take all three games tonight to knock the Study Club from the top of the league.

Alderman-Maghan defeated Peterson Clothing Co. two games. The hardware team rolled a nice 951 count their last game. Hulet rolled 541 which was high total in the match. Guin with 529 was high for Petersons.

Quake Every Half Minute

Every half minute an earthquake occurs somewhere on earth. Great ones powerful enough to destroy towns happen about four times a year. Two especially sensitive zones exist: 1—along the almost continuous stretch of the Alps, Caucasus and Himalaya mountains; 2—along the whole mountainous circle of the Pacific. Often shaken Italy is in the first zone, California and Japan in the second. Eastern North America along the Appalachian chain goes through a noticeable, but usually harmless quake at least once a year, and a damaging one at about five-year intervals.—Time, the Newsmagazine.

He Knew the Law

The late Haley Fiske of insurance fame told this story at an insurance men's banquet in New York.

"An American company," he said, "opened a branch in eastern Europe and was soon doing well."

"A rich peasant visited the main office one day, insured his farm, and then said to the manager:

"Now, then, sir, I must have everything plain and clear before I go. Exactly what would I get if my house and barn were to burn down tonight?"

"Not more than ten years and not less than three," said the manager.

Twenty-Three Adjectives

A California man, suing his wife for divorce after less than two years of marriage, says that she is "sullen, mean, irritable, morbid, disagreeable, nasty, gruesome, cool, bitter, jealous, heckling, picaunish, loathsome, insulting, brazen, miserly, gluttonous, temperamental, selfish, contemptuous, inattentive, uncivil and inconsiderate."

It is obvious that one who close from Roget with such care did not mean to imply that she was uncongenial.

Bloomin' Man of Destiny

By HARDIN BURNLEY

ENGLISH accents, not uncommon along Florida's east coast in the winter season, are more pronounced than ever this year among the society set now that Mr. Philip Suffling (Scott) of Old Kent Road Manor, London, has been accepted as the social successor to that polite limelight so long enjoyed by M. Georges Carpentier of Paris. This Scott gentleman—with his ballroom carriage, beaming smile, and Mayfair conversational flair—is quite de rigueur among society folk. Phil's that "top hole chap, you know," who will brave "The Terrible Sharkey Man" tomorrow night. He may even display the drawing room nonchalance (?) such as "Gorgeous Georges" affected when facing the "Man-Killing" Dempsey.

Oh, well, "My Phil" (as "Jimmy" Johnston, his American manager, calls him) would seem to have a better chance against the temperamental typhoon known as Sharkey than Carp had against the Mauler in the latter's prime. Scott is bigger than the gallant Frenchman and Sharkey seldom has shown such a destructive attack as was once the outboxing Jack if the latter's mood happens to be uninspired and, if he can ride Sharkey's early rushes, he might tire less easily than the nerve-wrought, plunging U. S. champ.

Scott is thoroughly experienced and a genuinely skilled boxer. He probably will try to keep away from the bull-like Sharkey during the early rounds (will there be more than one? some prophets ask) and tire out Jack by the or-

From Fishing Smack to Liner

"CAPTAIN BLAISDELL, I wish you would tell me about your rise from fishing smack to liner," I asked as I stood in the low doorway.

Crisp winter sunlight poured through the many panes into the high chart room, and crisp charts rattled in the hands of the youthful skipper.

"Why, there's nothing to tell," replied the captain. "Once started the climb was easy. Rising from a hundred tonner to ten thousand tons in a few years isn't remarkable because I'm a natural born shellback, and I'm also careful not to make the same slip twice."

"Oh, come now, cap'n," I protested. "Well, son, take a chair and light up while I fill my old duden."

I dropped into a chair in the corner, tossed my hat on the chart-rack and wished I were another Conrad.

The captain's voice lost its high powered quality as he began to talk between whiffs.

"My people have been fishermen back as far as family tradition goes, so, as I said before, I am a natural born shellback, and at nineteen I was a full fledged master of the 'Jullann,' a hundred ton fishing schooner. Named for my mother she was, and I made her pay well during the six years I sailed her."

"Guess I loved the old hooker, too. You know, son, a ship is rightly called 'she.' Some say because her rigging cost more than her hull. Others say because it takes a man to handle her. Well, a woman and a ship are alike in another way. It ain't so much their beauty that makes you love 'em as it is the way they stand up under hard knocks."

"The 'Jullann' stood up well."

"At twenty-five, about your age, I married and took my wife on a fishing trip on the Newfoundland banks for a honeymoon. As I was the old man, of course she was the old lady, the minute she stepped onto the 'Jullann's' deck. We made a honeymoon catch that trip, too, hake, mackerel and cod, and headed for home loaded deep enough to cover a Plimsoll mark."

"Now the 'Jullann' was usually an easy little craft to handle, but that load of wet fish made her loggy and cranky. The Newfoundland tide is hellish tricky, and we sailed into the teeth of an August easterly, fog and all. I carried a crew of four on the 'Jullann,' and for two full days we were on the jump every minute, clawing off that lee shore."

"There wasn't a high sea running, but it was treacherous and thick as burgoon. The first sounding to worry me was the red rag—seven fathoms. In that tide and an easterly, son, I was uneasy as a thole-pin."

"After forty-eight hours clawing off, we lost all track of watches. All hands were on deck all of the time, but it must have been in the middle of the dogwatch when she struck."

"I remember how a nag I was riding once reared, and then backed up a terrace when surprised by a big alligator. That's the way the 'Jullann' went ashore off the Newfoundland coast with a high black bluff looming in the blackness just astern of her."

"Of course we took to the long boat and got off without crashing or capsizing."

"The old lady threw plenty of cans of condensed milk into the bottom of the boat and we had a water-cask and the instruments when we pulled off. Breakers were sprinkling the poop by that time."

"We got off the 'Jullann' all right, and pulled frantically to the safety of the open ocean. As soon as I was reasonably sure the bluff was well to leeward of us we began to spell each other at the oars, but by Sodom's Island, son, before midnight the wind had hauled offshore."

"As to the old lady, she bailed off and on, and was cheerful without being silly. Had sense enough not to try to make light of a serious situation. Didn't try to kid herself or us about being picked up in an hour, neither did she start praying out loud. She just bailed, and fixed us a tonic. She'd punch a hole in a can of condensed milk, guess at pouring out an eighth, add some water and a good nip from the flask she'd taken from the medicine chest. She had a flask in each stocking that night."

"It was a long night, a tough night. Eight of us, seven men of all ages and a woman of twenty in a little open boat rolling and tumbling on the worst part of the Atlantic."

Captain Blaisdell's pipe had hung in his limp fingers for some time. Now he felt in his pockets for more tobacco, but finally accepted the cigarette I offered, lighted it, flung open a chart-house window, and finished his narrative.

"At daybreak there was the 'Jullann' luffing along half a mile to windward of us. The helmsman had lashed her wheel from force of habit, and when the wind hauled offshore it filled her mains'l. Judging by what we found when we hauled her out later she'd run afoul of a submerged wreck."

"That damned fool experience was the break. It woke me up. I sold the 'Jullann' while she lay in East Boston dry dock."

"During the years it has taken me to work up to this berth, depth-taking devices have been perfected. Even so, I'm always uneasy as a thole-pin when on soundings, but, son, this Old Man does not make the same slip twice."

CONCERNING WOMEN

About 2,200 women hold executive positions in banks throughout the country.

Miss Edith K. Bauer is the leading woman insurance agent in New York for the Equitable Life Assurance society.

An attempt was made several years ago to organize an American Society of Women Engineers and Architects but failed.

Before woman suffrage, almost every gathering of women protesting against the inequality was news. Today, curiously, women have ceased to be news as a sex.

According to an authority, one New York newspaper has three women applicants daily seeking work as reporters and hires perhaps one woman reporter a year.

In comparison with men, women have accomplished very little in the past in the fine arts, although the number of promising women artists today holds out glorious hopes for the future.

In the last half century women have succeeded in every branch of science. Among the distinguished names of women in science today are Mme. Curie, Lillian K. Farrar, Gladys Dick, Florence Sabin and Rost Prigosen.

REFLECTIONS

Many a bill has been paid through a coo.

He who takes no chances often gives the prize.

Many people make money, but most of us have to earn it.

Money talks, but the men who make it are generally silent.

A woman's face is her fortune, when it draws a lot of interest.

If the fair sex is so designing, why aren't there more women architects?

Those who invest in a going concern should make sure which way it is going.

Silence is golden, but you don't get much comfort by jingling a couple of silences together.

Maidens who claim to be twenty when they are really twenty-six didn't learn how to count until the age of six.

HERE AND THERE

The Sahara desert of northern Africa is the largest arid region in the world.

The temperature of molten lava is estimated from about 2,200 to 3,600 degrees Fahrenheit.

In the Rocky mountains of Colorado alone there are 40 peaks exceeding 14,000 feet elevation.

The average loss from lightning stroke in the United States is about five per million population.

The river systems of the earth are estimated to carry to the ocean each year about 6,500 cubic miles of water.

The Taiga forest, extending for more than 4,000 miles across Siberia, is one of the greatest forest areas in the world.

It is estimated that there are more than 10,000 mineral springs in the United States, of which nearly 1,000 have produced waters in commercial quantities.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

YES, WE HAVE BOWS

Bows, says Paris, we must have. Paris, of course, always likes things piquant, and we have to admit that bows are that. These bows give a pert effect to the corner of the square neck, the closing at the natural waistline, and the point where the side closing meets the lower hip seam. They are not included in the pattern, and extra material must be bought for them. In total effect, the frock is refreshingly youthful. Its lines are simple but not monotonous, and it adapts itself to a variety of materials—the new jerseys, tweeds or the lovely new silks in gorgeous designs. Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5140. Sizes 14 to 42, 60 cents.

Birthplace of Storms

The weather bureau says the general drift of the atmosphere in middle latitudes is from the west, and that in turn is owing to two things—the circulation of the atmosphere between the heated equatorial and the cooled polar regions, and the rotation of the earth from west to east. This is the reason why storms come from the west.

Light and Dark Meat

The bureau of biological survey says very little data have been compiled regarding the reason that some birds have all dark flesh and others part light and part dark. It has been observed, however, that birds in which the power of flight is well developed have more dark meat than others.

The pace-setters

KEEPING-UP-WITH-THE-JONESES is no mere vagary of the cartooner. It is an actual condition in every city, town, village and hamlet of this great country.

There is a Jones in every locality to set the pace. But the average Jones is not a rich man—far from it. He has a good job, he dresses well, he is a good talker and splendid company. Jones is always the gentleman, welcomed at business conventions, public dinners and social gatherings alike. Mrs. Jones is envied as a successful hostess. Every woman in her set, and out of it, seeks bids to her bridge parties and other social functions. Their home is cozy, tastefully furnished and provided with most of the modern conveniences.

"How do they do it?" ask the neighbors. "We have as much money as they. Socially we are their equals." But without seeming to try, without putting on any "dog," the Joneses set the pace just the same. They have learned from reading advertisements how to have many desirable things at little cost. They keep up to date on almost everything—just reading advertisements.

Keeping-up-with-the-Joneses is a comparatively easy matter—other things being equal. Read the advertisements regularly. Study them. Remember what you learn. Then, when you are in the market for anything, you will know, just as they do, what kind to buy. Soon you'll find yourself saving money, yet having more than you ever had. You'll find folks wondering how you do it. Oh, yes! It's fairly easy, if you make the most of your opportunities.

Advertisements are opportunities . . . study them to your own advantage

NINE PLOWS FIGHT HEAVIEST SNOWFALL

Highways to be Cleared by Nightfall Unless Heavy Snow Continues

EIGHT INCHES FALLS HERE

Traffic to Fargo and Duluth at Standstill Yesterday; Cars Marooned

Crow Wing county and district was bucking its way out of the heaviest snowfall of the year in the last 24 hours today. Eight inches of snow had fallen in Brainerd and surrounding territory. Fifteen inches was reported at Walker and a similar amount at Aitkin.

Nine snowplows were out today trying to break through the blockade of snow that held most of the highways in its power last night and yesterday.

A Minnesota Highway plow was able to reach Little Falls last evening and break the way for the late bus to this city. Another truck made it possible for the bus to reach Aitkin.

Buses scheduled for Bemidji, Fargo and Duluth were forced at a standstill here yesterday and car traffic throughout the district was not even attempted.

Six plows of the State Highway Department with headquarters here were clearing the highways in this district today in the face of continued snow. Plows were dispatched to clear the roads from Brainerd to Little Falls, Brainerd to Wadena, Brainerd to Walker, Brainerd to Onamia, Brainerd to Aitkin, Brainerd to Staples. Two plows were also working out of Park Rapids, two out of Walker and two out of Aitkin.

In addition to the contingent of state plows the county had two plows on county highways and the city's plow was working in the city.

Promise of open highways by nightfall unless the heavy snow continues was made by the Minnesota Highway Department.

The Northern Pacific railway sent out plows yesterday clearing the tracks for the trains. All ran as per schedule yesterday and continued so today.

The heavy snow followed one week of spring weather when the temperature reached as high as 55 degrees above zero, melted all snow and gave the grass a tinge of green.

Official readings of temperature here yesterday recorded a high of 35 degrees above zero with the low at 21 above. At 8 a. m. today the temperature was 21 degrees above zero.

The storm caused no line trouble in their department, the repair service of the Brainerd branch of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Co. reported.

Parking Request Made
City Engineer R. T. Campbell and Chief of Police Thomas Temption joined today in asking car-owners not to park their cars in the business district tonight between the hours of 2 a. m. to 8 a. m. that the snow plow might clear the streets of snow up to the curbs.

A number of snow shovellers were put on duty today cleaning walks throughout the city.

All Schools Open
Despite the heavy snow and the blocking of roads no schools throughout the country were closed today.

Mrs. Irma Camp Hartley, county superintendent of schools reported she had heard of none closing.

All city schools remained open with the attendance slightly below normal.

Snow To Help Farmers
Of particular welcome was the snow to the farmers. They looked upon it as beneficial to crops this forthcoming summer. The snow will also have the tendency of raising the levels of the lakes throughout the district which have been unusually low this season.

MOTORISTS PAY 30 MILLION GAS TAX

Covers Period of Time Since First Gas Tax Law Went Into Effect in 1925

COLLECTIONS NOTED

Actual Receipts in State for 1929 Amounted to $9,630,304.51 by Tax Increase

Motorists in Minnesota have paid a total of over 30 million dollars for gas tax since the first gas tax law enacted by the 1925 legislature went into effect on May 1, 1925.

An explanation of this is contained in a statement by Hjalmar Nilsson, chief oil inspector, announced today as follows:

The first gas tax law enacted by the 1925 legislature went into effect on May 1, 1925 and provided for a two cents per gallon tax on all shipments of gasoline with an allowance of three percent for shrinkage or in other words, on a volume of one hundred gallons, only ninety seven gallons were to be assessed with a gas tax.

The total tax for the eight months of 1925 amounted to $3,983,738.37. For the year 1926, the tax was $5,070,015.69, for 1927 $5,510,257.40 and for 1928 $6,211,787.46.

The 1929 legislature raised the gasoline tax from two cents to three cents per gallon and retained the allowance of three percent for shrinkage. The new law became effective on May 1, 1929, and during the first four months under the two cent rate the tax amounted to $1,625,668.02 and for the succeeding eight months under the new three cents per gallon rate to $7,747,171.71 or $9,372,839.73 in all. To this, however, $257,464.78 had to be added which had been collected for stock on hand on May 1 for which one cent per gallon had to be paid, and therefore, the actual tax for 1929 amounted to $9,630,304.51, and the tax collected for the entire period from May 1, 1925 to December 31, 1929 was to $30,406,103.43.

The Minnesota gas tax law provides that purchasers of gasoline which is used by them for other purposes than in motor vehicles on the public highways are to receive a refund of the gasoline tax on the volume which they so have used, and the amount of money so refunded during the corresponding period from 1925 to 1929 amounted to $1,907,264.11 or 6.3 percent of the entire tax collected.

Examination and recording of refund claims and issuing checks to the claimants entails much labor and costs and is carried on by a separate department of the division of oil inspection. During the year 1929 alone, 80,020 refund claims were approved and paid amounting to $739,026.46.

In the following table is shown the grouping of refund claims, their numbers and amounts involved:

Entire Year	Claims	Amount
Agriculture	68226	$497,714.34
Aviation	153	7,034.60
Dry cleaning	1218	22,581.93
Industrial	1851	69,257.46
Railroads	262	27,501.51
Road Const.	1903	106,344.53
U. S. Gov't.	50	471.59
Misc.	3357	8,121.10
	80020	$739,026.46

Real Success
He has achieved success who has lived well, laughed often and loved much; who has gained the respect of intelligent men and the love of little children; who has never lacked appreciation of earth's beauty or failed to express it; who has looked for the best in others and given the best he had.—Mrs. A. J. Stanley.

Nation's Butter Consumption
The Department of Agriculture says that approximately 99 1/2 per cent of the butter consumed in this country is produced in this country. The butter that is imported comes mostly from Denmark and New Zealand.

"Wise Girls" Is Excellent Example of Speedy Film Comedy
"Wise Girls," a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talking picture, which opens at the Paramount theatre Thursday as a fast-moving domestic comedy which loses no time in getting under way.

"Pa" Bence is planted as a crabby old boy with three daughters, only one of whom is married.

"Kate Bence" returns with $1,100 worth of clothes. Pa was obliging as to the expense, but when he found she bought them to go on the stage, instead of to marry his favorite, the wealthy Duke Merrill, he was not so agreeable.

Duke Merrill arrives, but Kate has high-flying ideas about the stage and refuses to marry him, since he opposes her career.

Kempy James, a dreamy young plumber-architect, arrives to fix the water-pipes. Just as he and Ruth Bence are getting interested in each other, Kate gets mad about her family's interference, sweeps Kempy into a car and goes off to get married!

Merrill is upset, but sees a way to teach Kate, and her dad, a lesson. He buys an option on the house, held by Ben Wade, Bence's son-in-law, and turns the same over to Kempy.

Fortified by this, Kempy becomes quite the master of the house, orders the old man around, bosses his brand new wife, etc.

But that doesn't prevent him from spending his wedding night on the living room sofa, together with the family dog!

At a road house, Duke Merrill learns that the marriage was illegal, that Kempy and Kate were under age.

When he bursts into the house, Pa Bence is being treated for a bad toothache, Ruth and Kempy have fallen in love with each other—and Kate is dreadfully worried over Duke!

So the whole tangle straightens out, the right folks marry the right folks, Pa Bence is relieved of both of his excess daughters—and everybody lives happily ever after.

NOT ENOUGH BUTTER EATEN, ROTH AVERS

Home Consumption of Farm Products Necessary for Prosperity of Community

"I believe I can safely say that not a single person in Crow Wing county is eating enough dairy products," County Agent E. G. Roth declared this week. "Surveys in several counties in the butter-producing areas show that farm communities are large consumers of a substitute manufactured from foreign oils, especially coconut oil. The use of this substitute is in direct competition with your business. The proceeds of the sale of these substitutes go into foreign channels. In your own interest, use your own products."

The business men in the small cities and towns of the country realize the importance of home consumption of farm products for the prosperity of the community. They know that there is a close relationship between the dairy cow and the success of the community.

In commenting on the importance of a stabilized industry to the farmer and to the community as a whole, the county agent pointed out that the returns from the dairy herd come with the regularity of a pay check throughout the year. They supply the farmer with the ready cash for his immediate livelihood and enable him to carry on his other agricultural occupations. The money is spent at home. Every business man gets his share. For these reasons alone, even though there was no encouragement in the way of better health, the county agent felt that every business man and farmer would do his share in consuming more dairy products to eliminate the present surplus and secure the industry in the future.

MOTORISTS PAY 30 MILLION GAS TAX

Covers Period of Time Since First Gas Tax Law Went Into Effect in 1925

COLLECTIONS NOTED

Actual Receipts in State for 1929 Amounted to $9,630,304.51 by Tax Increase

Motorists in Minnesota have paid a total of over 30 million dollars for gas tax since the first gas tax law enacted by the 1925 legislature went into effect on May 1, 1925.

An explanation of this is contained in a statement by Hjalmar Nilsson, chief oil inspector, announced today as follows:

The first gas tax law enacted by the 1925 legislature went into effect on May 1, 1925 and provided for a two cents per gallon tax on all shipments of gasoline with an allowance of three percent for shrinkage or in other words, on a volume of one hundred gallons, only ninety seven gallons were to be assessed with a gas tax. The total tax for the eight months of 1925 and for stock on hand on May 1, 1925 amounted to $3,983,738.37. For the year 1926, the tax was $5,070,015.69, for 1927 $5,519,257.40 and for 1928 $6,211,787.46.

The 1929 legislature raised the gasoline tax from two cents to three cents per gallon and retained the allowance of three percent for shrinkage. The new law became effective on May 1, 1929, and during the first four months under the two cent rate the tax amounted to $1,625,668.02 and for the succeeding eight months under the new three cents per gallon rate to $7,747,171.71 or $9,372,839.73 in all. To this, however, $257,468.78 had to be added which had been collected for stock on hand on May 1 for which one cent per gallon had to be paid, and therefore, the actual tax for 1929 amounted to $9,630,304.51, and the tax collected for the entire period from May 1, 1925 to December 31, 1929 was to $30,406,103.43.

The Minnesota gas tax law provides that purchasers of gasoline which is used by them for other purposes than in motor vehicles on the public highways are to receive a refund of the gasoline tax on the volume which they so have used, and the amount of money so refunded during the corresponding period from 1925 to 1929 amounted to $1,907,284.11 or 6.3 per cent of the entire tax collected.

Examination and recording of refund claims and issuing checks to the claimants entails much labor and costs and is carried on by a separate department of the division of oil inspection. During the year 1929 alone, 80,020 refund claims were approved and paid amounting to $739,026.46. In the following table is shown the grouping of refund claims, their numbers and amounts involved:

Entire Year	Claims	Amount

The use of this substitute is in direct competition with your business. The proceeds of the sale of these substitutes go into foreign channels. In your own interest, use your own products."

The business men in the small cities and towns of the country realize the importance of home consumption of farm products for the prosperity of the community. They know that there is a close relationship between the dairy cow and the success of the community.

In commenting on the importance of a stabilized industry to the farmer and to the community as a whole, the county agent pointed out that the returns from the dairy herd come with the regularity of a pay check throughout the year. They supply the farmer with the ready cash for his immediate livelihood and enable him to carry on his other agricultural occupations. The money is spent at home. Every business man gets his share. For these reasons alone, even though there was no encouragement in the way of better health, the county agent felt that every business man and farmer would do his share in consuming more dairy products to eliminate the present surplus and secure the industry in the future.

"MASTER of MONEY"

BY ROY VICKERS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

ALAN BRENNAWAY, 35, has made a fortune. He asks Shirley Dane, beautiful young society girl, to marry him. She refuses, being secretly engaged to Roger Kelton, young lawyer, in whose care she has placed her inheritance. Unknown to Shirley, Alan lends Roger half a million dollars to save him from bankruptcy, after he learns that Roger is the man Shirley loves. Alan takes as collateral worthless shares in a Macedonia development which Roger agrees to investigate. After Roger and Shirley are married, Roger tells her Alan is a client of his and, therefore, he cannot refuse to go to Macedonia. Alan, longing to see Shirley, returns to New York from a rest in Vermont. Roger, trying to get out of his Macedonia bargain, uses Shirley's health as an alibi. When Cynaz, financial shark, gives him a tip, Roger figures he can reduce his indebtedness to Alan $50,000. He is jealous of Alan and feels his loan was made for Shirley's sake. Shirley and Roger go to Vermont. When Alan warns Shirley about her expenditures, she tells him her money is invested in Corto Bella stock.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

"Do you think it's any good your having a serious talk with Shirley about Macedonia?" asked Roger.

"Not in the least," answered Alan. "Shirley doesn't exist as far as that enterprise is concerned. I don't think that you quite understand my attitude to that matter, Kelton. I saw in it only a possible means of your liquidating your debt."

"So it seemed to me—at the time when we first discussed it," said Kelton eagerly. "But the mistake I made, of course, was to fail to visualize how very close a partnership marriage is."

"The second you have a scheme that touches the home life, such as this one, it is impossible to make any decision without consulting the other party. I blame myself a whole lot, Brennaway."

Alan waited. Kelton had some plan up his sleeve; no need to help him out.

"I am bound to remind myself that this Macedonia business formed an important part of our conversation in the first instance," continued Kelton, and Alan had the impression that he was rehearsing a prepared speech. "I will not say that it was a condition of the loan because that would be to do you an injustice."

You are not the kind of man who makes conditions when he is in a position to help.

SHE went backwards up the stairs, carelessly, a step at a time; her lips and eyes still smiled down at him.

"Corto Bella!" reflected Alan aloud. "I know that stock. That fellow Cynaz is at the back of it. Don't you remember he mentioned it the night you took me to a reception, when I told you—"

"Yes, the other day he dined with us and he advised me to buy. We've made a lot of money out of it already, or we would have if we had sold; but we're waiting to make more. Stop looking like that, Alan."

"Cynaz is a faker," said Alan, following her up. "It's all a matter of profit with him. He doesn't know or care about the realities behind the companies. I don't know anything about finance on that scale. Anyway, Corto Bella is very speculative. If you've made a profit already I'd advise you to sell out. Are you in it very heavily?"

"Only twenty-five thousand. And I don't think I shall take your advice. It's no use compromising between your methods and mine."

"You didn't say for Southampton with Corto Bella, surely?"

"Oh, no. That was something else. That had nothing to do with that. Mr. Gorston—but perhaps you don't know him—gave Roger a tip and in three days he made over a thousand."

"I thought you said your capital hadn't been touched except—"

"It hasn't. I had nothing to do with that. Roger did it himself."

Alan made no answer. If Kelton had been making money by taking Stock Exchange tips that had happened to come off, where had he obtained the capital?

The staircase had brought Alan and Shirley back to the main hall. And there was Roger waiting for them. Alan was forced to dismiss his doubts and greeted his host.

Roger, in flawless evening kit, poked lazy fun at Alan's knickers and Shirley's knitted silks. At once Alan received the impression that Roger was secretly in the highest feather. No use in wondering why—no use in doing anything but be glad that Shirley was so happily married. A bargain, that happiness, at half a million.

They were at the table in a cosy cedar-paneled room.

"By the way, Brennaway, Shirley has put her foot down upon Macedonia. You had better talk to her like a father."

So that was why Kelton was so chipper. He had hit on the plan of using Shirley directly instead of indirectly as before. That showed he had no spirit. It did not matter. Alan said nothing, only looked at Shirley.

"You don't really want him to go, do you, Alan?" she was asking. All sense of irritation had left Alan. Macedonia as far as Kelton was concerned was already forgotten.

"I gather from your husband's last remark that it isn't any use wanting him to go to Macedonia or anywhere else where you don't want him to go," he said smiling.

"Now, I suppose, you want me to apologize for suggesting it?"

"Well, it was rather curmudgeonly, wasn't it?"

"I was afraid you'd put me in the curmudgeon department, Shirley," said Alan. "We must think out something that will suit Roger better."

Yes, that was one reason, at least, why Kelton was so pleased with himself. Alan could almost read his thoughts. . . . Roger was thinking what a fool he had been not to use Shirley before. Shirley was an invaluable asset. There was a lot to be said for this big brother atmosphere. It enabled Shirley to be very cheery.

"Cynaz is a faker," said Alan, following her up.

Alan, thought-reading, remained indifferent. It didn't matter. Nothing mattered save to be near Shirley, to watch her smile, to know that she had married a man she loved.

They had finished the coffee and Shirley still lingered. Roger got up.

"Fare away, Shirley!" he said and opened the door, laughing.

His laughter, too, Alan could read. It was pleasant to Roger to send Shirley away in Brennaway's presence. It gave a glimpse of their intimacy. . . . Still Alan refused to let himself care.

Roger had shut the door and returned to the table. He was going to talk about Macedonia, so Alan guessed. . . . He was right, helping another man. But to me at any rate it was an implied condition—I prefer to regard it so, if you will allow me. We come, therefore, to the plain, brutal fact that I have failed to fulfill your conditions. Only one course remains to me—and that is to take steps to repay the loan."

Alan was startled.

"Take steps?" he echoed. "What steps?"

"My clientele is growing rapidly," answered Kelton. "Thanks in no small measure to yourself. The action against Randon was really a subtle form of advertisement. The credit of the firm has never been higher. And I think, if it would suit you, I could manage a part payment of fifty thousand in a few days."

"To do that you would have to borrow."

"I have no alternative to borrowing—no moral alternative now."

Facts About Sponges

Sponges are very irregular in form, symmetrical ones being rare, and their color is as variable as their shape. Deep-sea sponges, like other animals that live in the dark, are generally light in color; but those that live in shallow water are very bright, and the color assumed by the sponge is generally for purposes of defense, or to frighten away other animals. Sponges are very abundant in the Australian seas; especially is this the case with the horny or highest form of sponges.

Cooling for a Year

A huge mirror which took nearly a year to cool down has been made in England for a large reflecting telescope. Weighing more than a ton and a half, it is sixty-nine inches in diameter and ten inches thick. Disks of glass of this size are difficult to get free from defects, and after the molten glass has been poured into the mold it has to be kept hot by electric heaters and cooled down over a period of many months.

Valuable Information

Grandma had just arrived on a visit and to take part in celebrating young Bobbie's birthday on the morrow.

After supper Bobbie started to flit about round grandma's chair. To the surprise of everyone present he said: "Grandma, which is the right side of you? Mother said if I'm a good boy and keep on the right side of you you might buy me a bicycle."

Preserving Newspapers

The paper upon which modern newspapers are printed becomes brittle when exposed to air for a long time. Some libraries have solved the problem of preserving newspaper files by mounting each sheet between two sheets of thin Japanese tissue. This seals the paper from the air, reducing its brittleness but slightly and strengthening the page.

Missouri Philosophy

It's not the weather, nor where they live, nor whether they are sick or well, poor or rich, that makes people grouchy—it's their disposition.—Hopkins Journal.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

SHIRRED CAPELET

Soft shoulder effects and wide collars go hand in hand, and the capelet is one of the pets of fashion. In this lovely afternoon frock the contrasting collar of sheer crepe is shirred in the front and dips to the waistline in back. It is cut over the arms to give the effect of short sleeves. The frock itself is fashioned of a print in conventionalized floral design, the skirt deriving its fullness from the slightly circular cut. The pattern provides a narrow belt or a wide-shaped girdle that ties on the left side, and long tight sleeves. The cape may be omitted.

Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5079. Sizes 14 to 42, 45 cents.

Real Question

The question for each man to settle is not what he would do if he had means, time, influence, and educational advantages, but what he will do with the things he has.

"MASTER of MONEY" BY ROY VICKERS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

ALAN BRENNAWAY, 35, has made a fortune. He asks Shirley Dane, beautiful young society girl, to marry him. She refuses, being secretly engaged to Roger Kelton, young lawyer, in whose care she has placed her inheritance. Unknown to Shirley, Alan lends Roger half a million dollars to save him from bankruptcy, after he learns that Roger is the man Shirley loves. Alan takes as collateral worthless shares in a Macedonia development which Roger agrees to investigate. After Roger and Shirley are married, Roger tells her Alan is a client of his and, therefore, he cannot refuse to go to Macedonia. Alan, longing to see Shirley, returns to New York from a rest in Vermont. Roger, trying to get out of his Macedonia bargain, uses Shirley's health as an alibi. When Cynaz, financial shark, gives him a tip, Roger figures he can reduce his indebtedness to Alan $50,000. He is jealous of Alan and feels his loan was made for Shirley's sake. Shirley and Roger go to Vermont. When Alan warns Shirley about her expenditures, she tells him her money is invested in Corto Bella stock.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.)

CHAPTER XVII

SHE went backwards up the stairs, carelessly, a step at a time; her lips and eyes still smiled down at him.

"Corto Bella!" reflected Alan aloud. "I know that stock. That fellow Cynaz is at the back of it. Don't you remember he mentioned it the night you took me to a reception, when I told you—"

"Yes, the other day he dined with us and he advised me to buy. We've made a lot of money out of it already, or we would have if we had sold; but we're waiting to make more. Stop looking like that, Alan."

"Cynaz is a faker," said Alan, following her up. "It's all a matter of profit with him. He doesn't know or care about the realities behind the companies. I don't know anything about finance on that scale. Anyway, Corto Bella is very speculative. If you've made a profit already I'd advise you to sell out. Are you in it very heavily?"

"Only twenty-five thousand. And I don't think I shall take your advice. It's no use compromising between your methods and mine."

"You didn't say for Southampton with Corto Bella, surely?"

"Oh, no. That was something else. That had nothing to do with that. Mr. Gorston—perhaps you don't know him—gave Roger a tip and in three days he made over a thousand."

"I thought you said your capital hadn't been touched except—"

"It hasn't. I had nothing to do with that. Roger did it himself."

Alan made no answer. If Kelton had been making money by taking Stock Exchange tips that had happened to come off, where had he obtained the capital?

The staircase had brought Alan and Shirley back to the main hall. And there was Roger waiting for them. Alan was forced to dismiss his doubts and greeted his host.

Roger, in flawless evening kit, poked lazy fun at Alan's knickers and Shirley's knitted silks. At once Alan received the impression that Roger was secretly in the highest feather. No use in wondering why—no use in doing anything but be glad that Shirley was so happily married. A bargain, that happiness, at half a million.

They were at the table in a cosy cedar-paneled room.

"By the way, Brennaway, Shirley has put her foot down upon Macedonia. You had better talk to her like a father."

So that was why Kelton was so chipper. He had hit on the plan of using Shirley directly instead of indirectly as before. That showed he had no spirit. It did not matter. Alan said nothing, only looked at Shirley.

"You don't really want him to go, do you, Alan?" she was asking.

All sense of irritation had left Alan. Macedonia as far as Kelton was concerned was already forgotten.

"I gather from your husband's last remark that it isn't any use wanting him to go to Macedonia or anywhere else where you don't want him to go," he said smiling.

"Now, I suppose, you want me to apologize for suggesting it?"

"Well, it was rather curmudgeonly, wasn't it?"

"I was afraid you'd put me in the curmudgeon department, Shirley," said Alan. "We must think out something that will suit Roger better."

Yes, that was one reason, at least, why Kelton was so pleased with himself. Alan could almost read his thoughts. . . . Roger was thinking what a fool he had been not to use Shirley before. Shirley was an invaluable asset. There was a lot to be said for this big brother atmosphere. It enabled Shirley to be very cheeky.

"Cynaz is a faker," said Alan, following her up.

Alan, thought-reading, remained indifferent. It didn't matter. Nothing mattered save to be near Shirley, to watch her smile, to know that she had married a man she loved.

They had finished the coffee and Shirley still lingered. Roger got up.

"Fade away, Shirley!" he said and opened the door, laughing.

His laughter, too, Alan could read. It was pleasant to Roger to send Shirley away in Brennaway's presence. It gave a glimpse of their intimacy. . . . Still Alan refused to let himself care.

Roger had shut the door and returned to the table. He was going to talk about Macedonia, so Alan guessed. . . . He was right, helping another man. But to me at any rate it was an implied condition—I prefer to regard it so, if you will allow me. We come, therefore, to the plain, brutal fact that I have failed to fulfill your conditions. Only one course remains to me—and that is to take steps to repay the loan."

Alan was startled.

"Take steps?" he echoed. "What steps?"

"My clientele is growing rapidly," answered Kelton. "Thanks in no small measure to yourself. The action against Random was really a subtle form of advertisement. The credit of the firm has never been higher. And I think, if it would suit you, I could manage a part payment of fifty-thousand in a few days."

"To do that you would have to borrow."

"I have no alternative to borrowing—no moral alternative now."

Historic Cathedral Bells

In the fourth story of the north tower of the famous cathedral of Chartres are two fine-toned bells, cast in 1840, from the tenor of which the Angelus rings out each evening. Four further bells—named Anne, Elizabeth, Fulbert and Plac—occupy the fifth story; these are dated five years later and one at least possesses an interesting history. When Anne of Brittany visited the cathedral she was so impressed by a boy's voice that she begged the authorities to release him to her, which they did, whereupon she said: "You have given me a small voice and now I will give you a big one." Years ago this bell was rung for an hour every evening during a certain period of the year, that there might be abundant harvest.

Paper-Clip Mouse Trap

There is no wiser or shrewder animal in the world than the rat and the mouse is almost as clever. These animals soon learn to recognize a trap by sight or odor and will walk around it. The traps are now made in camouflaged form. The trap for the mouse that runs through your desk and chews your papers has a spring that resembles a paper clip. An old tin can with a smashed top is another of these devices. When the mouse undertakes to explore the interior of this one he soon finds that the lid has closed behind him and escape is impossible.

Facts About Sponges

Sponges are very irregular in form, symmetrical ones being rare, and their color is as variable as their shape. Deep-sea sponges, like other animals that live in the dark, are generally light in color; but those that live in shallow water are very bright, and the color assumed by the sponge is generally for purposes of defense, or to frighten away other animals. Sponges are very abundant in the Australian seas; especially is this the case with the horny or highest form of sponges.

Cooling for a Year

A huge mirror which took nearly a year to cool down has been made in England for a large reflecting telescope. Weighing more than a ton and a half, it is sixty-nine inches in diameter and ten inches thick. Disks of glass of this size are difficult to get free from defects, and after the molten glass has been poured into the mold it has to be kept hot by electric heaters and cooled down over a period of many months.

Valuable Information

Grandma had just arrived on a visit and to take part in celebrating young Bobbie's birthday on the morrow.

After supper Bobbie started to fidget round grandma's chair. To the surprise of everyone present he said: "Grandma, which is the right side of you? Mother said if I'm a good boy and keep on the right side of you you might buy me a bicycle."

Preserving Newspapers

The paper upon which modern newspapers are printed becomes brittle when exposed to air for a long time. Some libraries have solved the problem of preserving newspaper files by mounting each sheet between two sheets of thin Japanese tissue. This seals the paper from the air, reducing its brittleness but slightly and strengthening the page.

Fashions for the Smart Woman

SHIRRED CAPELET

Soft shoulder effects and wide collars go hand in hand, and the capelet is one of the pets of Fashion. In this lovely afternoon frock the contrasting collar of sheer crepe is shirred in the front and dips to the waistline in back. It is cut over the arms to give the effect of short sleeves. The frock itself is fashioned of a print in conventionalized floral design, the skirt deriving its fullness from the slightly circular cut. The pattern provides a narrow belt or a wide-shaped girdle that ties on the left side, and long tight sleeves. The cape may be omitted.

Real Question

The question for each man to settle is not what he would do if he had means, time, influence, and educational advantages, but what he will do with the things he has.

POULTRY

PLAN TO PREVENT POULTRY LOSSES

Poor Production Usually Due to Insanitary Methods.

Successful poultrymen realize that practically all heavy losses in poultry are preventable, according to Charles N. Keen, assistant professor in poultry at the Colorado Agricultural college.

Heavy losses and poor production in poultry are usually due, Mr. Keen says, to some of the following factors: Failure to have clean houses, clean feed, clean water, birds free from parasites and failure to remove sick birds from the houses.

The fact that one changes the straw regularly does not mean that the house is in a good sanitary condition. Regular cleaning of the dropping boards must go with it. When you enter a poultry house during cold weather and the odor is such as to make you halt when you open the door, it is evident that the air is not sanitary.

The practice of feeding in open hoppers, dishes and the like, allows droppings to get into the mash feed. This spreads disease and causes a great deal of waste. Stagnant water left in the house for 24 hours, to three or four days at a time, is not a sanitary condition.

Birds which are affected with lice and mites become weakened and subject to disease. The following system used at the Colorado experiment station while birds are housed during the winter has proved very satisfactory, and we have little trouble with disease.

Dropping boards are cleaned three times a week or more and sprayed often with a spray consisting of 50 per cent crankcase oil and 50 per cent kerosene with one-half pint cresote disinfectant added to five gallons of the mixture. This spray is used from once a week to once a month, depending upon the amount needed. The dropping boards are oiled from this spray. This helps in cleaning them during cold weather.

A good disinfectant mixed with water is used for nests and other parts of the house several times a year. For lice the perches are painted with nicotine sulphate four or five times a year, or more often if necessary. Whenever colds appear a good disinfectant is used in the water, and any birds appearing weak or showing a tendency to roup, are removed. All birds which become sick are killed. It is surprising how much the killing of a few diseased birds will save.

Sunlight for Poultry Flock Quite Essential

During the winter months the location and adjustment of windows in the laying house are very important. There should be windows in each end of the house so that sunlight will strike the entire floor some time during the day. Along the south wall should be a large number of windows, and it is preferable that these be made of a high grade glass substitute which permits the entrance of the maximum amount of ultra-violet ray. Muslin curtains and ordinary glass are not satisfactory for this purpose. These windows should be well fitted and should be kept clean as the ultra-violet ray does not penetrate through dust and dirt. Furthermore it is better that they be arranged so they can be taken down during the summer months and not subjected to weathering.

Adequate Ventilation Essential for Poultry

Adequate ventilation is important for a profitable poultry flock. Sufficient fresh air must be admitted to replace the moisture-laden air thrown off by the birds. It must be admitted so as to avoid drafts. The open front principle is used extensively in many sections. It has been determined that the openings in the front wall should equal approximately one-tenth of the floor area. To protect the flock during severe storms frames covered with a light weight of muslin may be used in the front openings.

Avoid Diseases

Raising strong healthy chicks is largely a problem of keeping them away from the infection and diseases which thrive in old poultry yards.

Experience proves that although the old birds are free from the effects of disease, they harbor many diseases which prove destructive to young chicks.

Wire screen floors have been used successfully for years by some poultrymen and their use is increasing rapidly.

A hen producing 200 eggs a year must be supplied with sufficient calcium carbonate, so that after the loss that comes through digestion, she still will be able to deposit around the egg in the form of shell nearly three pounds of shell forming material. Such heavy calcium carbonate or egg-shell production demands serious consideration. Even though every other requirement is supplied, a deficiency of calcium carbonate will be limiting factor in production.

PAYING POULTRY FLOCK IS GROWN

Spring-Hatched Pullets Carefully Developed Are Best.

Developing the spring-hatched pullets from the time the chicks leave the incubator until the pullets are placed in the laying house is the pathway to profits in the poultry industry.

"The object of this development is to have pullets of stamina, bone and vigor and fully up to the standard weight of the breed," says R. S. Dearstyne, poultryman at State college. "At first the proper mashes are needed until finally the laying mash containing 20 per cent of protein is given. The young pullets must have an abundance of succulent green feed especially, as the grass on the range gets old and tough. When placing birds in the laying house, do this about two weeks before they start laying so that they may become accustomed to their surroundings."

Nesting material should be changed often, runs cleared of litter, perch poles scraped and freed of mites, and the birds examined for internal parasites. A minimum of four feet of floor space to each bird is needed in the house, and at least two feet of perch pole for each three birds. Dampness in the house and damp litter is to be avoided if the birds are not to have roup and colds. Fresh, clean water is necessary and the mash hoppers are to be kept filled at all times. Oyster shell and grit needs to be kept before the birds, and grain fed twice each day with the heaviest amount at evening.

Mr. Dearstyne says that the poultryman will do well to spend about ten minutes each day in general observation of his flock. This will help him to find any lack of thriftiness or any indication of disease. Birds roughly handled, irregularly fed and watered, infested with parasites or neglected in other ways will not prove profitable.

Caponizing Profitable Way to Market Poultry

Caponizing is one of the most profitable ways of marketing late-hatched cockerels. In an experiment last year fifty June hatched cockerels were caponized. The birds were of dual-purpose breeds and caponized when they had reached a weight of 12 ounces to 2 1/2 pounds. These birds were sold the following April and averaged six pounds each, dressed for market. They brought 35 cents a pound, or an average of $2.10 per bird. The feed cost of producing these birds was 84 cents each, and with an additional charge of 10 cents for dressing and picking, the net profit was $1.16 per bird.

Another poultryman caponized 191 barred Plymouth Rocks last summer. When sold their average weight was 7.7 pounds each, and they brought 43 cents per pound. The total cost of growing these capons—chicks, feed and labor—was placed at $366.14. There were 176 birds at selling time, which brought a total of $561.14, leaving a net profit of 85 cents per bird.

Poultry Notes

Winter egg profits will depend largely on the care given pullets.

Hatch the chicks early so that the pullets are mature for winter egg production.

Don't forget the importance of fresh, juicy greens for both the baby chicks and old hens.

The first half of April is the ideal time to hatch chicks of smaller breeds such as the Leghorns.

Giving hens 12 hours of light increases egg production at the season when the prices are high.

When calcium carbonate is not available in sufficient quantities, hens lay soft-shelled eggs or no eggs at all.

Making it easier for the hens to consume large quantities of mash aids in the production of eggs. At least 10 linear feet of double hopper space should be provided for 100 hens.

Culling should not be considered as a substitute for correct management of a flock of hens. Even the good producers may cease laying in the summer if proper care is neglected.

The DAIRY

WINTER FEEDING FOR DAIRY COWS

Hardest Working Animal on Farm Needs Best Ration.

The milking cow is the hardest working animal on the farm, a fact which explains the importance of good feeding for dairy cows. A cow giving 35 pounds of milk a day produces in that milk what is known as 10.4 therms of energy. To produce the same number of therms in the form of useful work, a team of two 1,500-pound horses would have to work steadily for eight hours.

As the only way a cow can obtain energy to put into her milk is through the feed she eats, her feed must be highly nutritious and fed in sufficient quantities so that her body requirements as well as her full needs for maximum milk production are met. The successful dairy farmer bases his winter feeding program on an abundance of legume roughage such as alfalfa or other legume hay, and corn silage. So that he may be sure to have these roughages available next winter he is already making his plans for a substantial increase in alfalfa or one of the other legumes for hay this spring. An acre for each cow in milk will grow enough alfalfa hay to keep these cows well supplied with the very best dry roughage from late fall to early spring. The growing of about one acre and a half of the other legumes will be required to keep a milking cow well supplied with hay during the same period. Now is the time to plan for next winter.

In winter feeding, hay is usually fed at the rate of 1 to 1 1/2 pounds for each 100 pounds the cow weighs. Silage is generally fed at the rate of 2 1/2 to 3 1/2 pounds for each 100 pounds of the animal's weight. Grain should always be fed according to the cow's milk production. The larger breeds, such as the Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, and Holstein, are fed one pound of grain to each 3 1/2 to 4 pounds of milk produced daily. The smaller breeds, as the Guernseys and Jerseys are usually fed grain at the rate of 1 pound to each 3 pounds of milk produced daily.

Many Dairymen Overlook Water Supply in Winter

The average dairyman overlooks the water supply for his cows during the winter months, and in doing so he overlooks a nice profit and lowers the production of his cows. The dairy cow will drink 100 pounds of water daily if it is located where she can get it at least twice daily and it is not too cold. A fresh cow will drink three or four times as much as a stripper or dry cow. In cold winter weather a cow will not drink that much water if turned out but once a day and she has to walk to a pond or tank to drink. Furthermore, when a large amount of cold water is drunk in cold weather it must be raised to the body temperature of the cow, and to do this the cow burns the feed nutrients which were intended to produce milk and maintain her body.

Small Slender Silos Are Now Coming Into Style

If there was any such thing as styles in silo building, it would be appropriate to say that the slender figure in silos is coming into style. The tendency seems to be toward less diameter and more height, and if a large amount of silage is needed to build two small ones rather than one silo of great diameter.

Eight, ten and twelve-foot silos are each year becoming more common. These small structures make a silo a practical investment for herds of ten or more dairy cows, or for two or three loads of beef steers. Ten cows, for example, will eat about two inches of silage per day from an eight-foot silo and about one and one-third inches from a silo ten feet in diameter.

Cow Stanchions Should Be Properly Adjusted

The stanchions should be so adjusted that the cows deposit their droppings in the gutter and not on the platform. Clean, dustless bedding should be provided daily. The flanks of the cows should be clipped to keep the hair short so that the cows may be easily cleaned with a stiff brush. Brushing should be done as often as possible. Diseased cows should be isolated from the healthy ones. A constant inspection should be maintained to locate new diseases. Every dairyman should make it a point to become acquainted with common cow ailments. Milk from diseased cattle should never be sold.

Dipping for Lice

Lice cause great annoyance to calves and may seriously retard growth if present in large numbers. They are difficult to control, but about the most satisfactory treatment is dipping or washing with a coal tar dip solution. This method cannot be used during cold weather but should be used the first warm, still spring day. In a week or ten days the treatment should be repeated to get the young lice which have hatched out in the meantime.

WHY

A Lucky Stroke of Fortune Is Called a "Bonanza"

A large bequest unexpectedly left to us, a surprising and profitable turn of business, almost any stroke of good luck; that is what we are justified, according to the current use of the word, in calling a "bonanza."

And what a colorful story this word contains in its syllables. The very sound is intriguing and brings to the mind visions of the pioneers of the West and the struggle of those who with pick, shovel and other crude implements undertook the development of the great mineral resources of the United States.

The word "bonanza" itself, however, we get after the famous silver mine in Nevada known by that very name. The Bonanza was for long considered a hopeless failure. Suddenly a rich vein was uncovered, commencing a turn in the fortune of its backers which produced immense wealth for them.

Subsequently this chain of events occurred so frequently in the state of Nevada that it became known as the Bonanza state, after its rich bonanza mines.

Why Ideas About Lucky and Unlucky Days Differ

The scarcity of marriages on Friday proves how many people still have a lingering faith in the ill-luck of the sixth day of the week. There never was a more foolish superstition, and Friday is certainly not England's unlucky day, says an article in Pearson's Weekly. It is a funny thing that sailors are more superstitious about Friday than landmen, yet it is the lucky day of the British navy. The great defeat of the Spanish Armada occurred on Friday, July 29, 1588, and since then at least a dozen of our greatest naval victories have been won on Friday. What, then, is the worst day of the week? If you ask a tradesman he will probably say Tuesday, and in the telephone department of the post office, which is a barometer of both business and pleasure, Tuesday is looked upon as less harassing than other business days. Not long ago Lord Ashfield pointed out that Londoners travel less on Tuesdays than on any other day of the week. The only important people who dissent from this view are theatrical managers, who declare that Monday is their worst day.

Why Windows Steam

One of the main causes of the steaming of windows is lack of proper ventilation. The main thing is to insure a circulation of air. The application of gelatin is often helpful. Wipe down the windows with a rag squeezed out of gelatin, or use a soft potash soap to which sufficient glycerin is added to make a thin paste. When a thin film of either of these is applied to the glass the condensed moisture spreads out to a film and does not collect in fine drops, which cause the dimming of glass.

Why Cord About Arm

The wearing of a cord looped about the left arm and fastened at the shoulder is a French military decoration, presented to a unit of troops for distinguished service or conspicuous gallantry in time of war. It is worn by all the men of the troops thus honored and borne on the colors. Fourragers are in three colors, red, green and yellow, corresponding to the color of the ribbons of certain French military medals. Combinations of these colors are used to form the double fourragers.

Why Paint Cracks

Paint that is cracked in small hair lines sometimes running parallel, and often running crosswise on the grain, usually indicates improper drying between coats or an improper composition in the paint. Quite often this is due to applying a quick-drying top coat over a slow-drying or improperly dried under coat. The top coat cannot contract and expand uniformly with the under coat. Sometimes a paint containing a large proportion of zinc oxide in the top coat may be the cause.

Why "Stump Tail" Currency?

Why was "stump tail" currency so called? Here is the explanation given by a pioneer: In the late fifties many cattle of the western states were victims of a disease which, while not fatal, affected the animals' tails, causing these appendages to drop off. A "stump tail" cow was not much good, as she could not protect herself from flies. Therefore, currency not worth its face value was known as "stump tail" money.

Why Prison Pallor

Prison pallor is a condition which is arousing the interest of physicians. It is probably caused by a combination of food lacking in vitamins and lack of out-of-door exercise and sunshine. While it is true that many men outside of such institutions lead sedentary lives, usually their food includes more raw fruit, milk and fresh vegetables, and their mental attitude toward life is so different that they do not take on this institutional blight.

Why Eyelids Twitch

Overwork, particularly overstudy, is frequently the cause of eyelids twitching. Errors in refraction cause eye strain that results in twitching, and inflammation of the eyes may cause it.

Why Silver Coins Are Milled

Silver coins are milled on the edge so that silver cannot be shaved from the edges without being noticed.
